

Vandalism is the Biggest Problem of Sedalia Police Force

By Dick Staging

Democrat-Capital
Staff Writer

A rock smashes a window, scattering glass in the darkness; tires are slashed at a hospital parking lot; plate glass windows are peppered by an air rifle; mail boxes blasted. The recitation of vandalism in Sedalia could be endless.

Historically, vandals poured through the rubble of the Roman Empire in the fourth and fifth centuries, sacking Spain, Italy and what remained of the civilized world.

Their acts constituted the ignorant destruction of a legacy that cannot be replaced — only imagined. It would be safe to say that the vandals of the twentieth century have not changed a great deal.

Destruction for the sake of destruction is always baffling, and its residue is a nagging "why?" In most instances it is a question that goes unanswered, for vandalism, by its very nature, has little logic.

In the great majority of cases, law enforcement officers are supplied with a motive — personal gain, revenge, some sort of criminal incentive.

Vandalism is a frequent but random thing, with property as its usual object of attack. The variation arises in the means of the attack — sprayed paint, defaced monuments, fire, sharp instruments to rip upholstery and exterior of cars.

Sedalia police have filed 175 reports of vandalism during the first six months of 1968 — assuming the rate does not rise, a total of 350 acts of vandalism will occur this year.

This means that at some hour, somewhere in Sedalia, property is being destroyed or damaged at the rate of nearly one incident a day.

Why? What is the chemistry of a vandal? Chief of Police William Miller believes that it "boils down to what sort of discipline and upbringing a child receives at home — whether or not respect for other's and their property is firmly fixed in their minds."

Missouri courts, by a recent act of the Legislature, now hold parents liable up to $300 for each act of vandalism committed by their children. This liability is civil, not criminal.

The economic impact of vandalism is reflected in rising insurance rates, the cost of replacing property that has been damaged or destroyed and whatever personal injuries result from this sort of mindlessness. While no exact figures are available, the annual loss in Sedalia alone runs well into the thousands of dollars.

Most citizens do not think of vandalism in terms of personal injuries. Yet some forms of vandalism could easily lead to this.

Consider for a moment one of the most common acts of vandalism — the slashing of automobile tires. Assume that you or a member of your family had become critically ill or injured and required immediate medical attention you couldn't get it from a car that had two three, or even four flat tires.

This bit of vandalism might cost you your life. It is no prank, it is not funny.

Perhaps the most outrageously senseless acts of vandalism in this area — and one which created a great public uproar — was the destruction of the old covered bridge on South Ingram, which was burned by vandals two years ago. This landmark — not only for Sedalians and Pettis Countians but for all Missourians as well as other visitors — cannot be measured in terms of dollars and cents, nor be replaced. There is no substitute for living history.

According to Chief Miller, vandals are found in all economic classes. "They run the gamut," Miller said. "In the majority of cases, the vandal doesn't even know the person that he injures." Miller's own antenna has been broken off his car. Reason: "They do it for kicks," Miller said. He further concedes that vandalism is the "biggest headache" of the police department.

It has been suggested that vandals are the products of our mechanized age, that they are not only the results but the victims of the industrial revolution. Authorities say that we are living in a period that affords too much time — that vandalism is a means of creating some "action."

Whatever the cause, it is obvious that vandalism represents a destructive impulse in society about which Sedalians — parents, taxpayers and just plain concerned citizens — are taking increasing note.

Items Set For Action By Council

The Sedalia City Council meets in regular session tonight at 7:30 with several items of unfinished business likely to come up.

Last Monday night the council opened bids on most of the items listed in the construction of a building on West Highway 50 for Town & Country Shoes. These bids were taken under advisement, and a report on the bids may come up tonight.

The council is expected to open bids on electrical, heating and air conditioning for the building tonight. These items were not included in last week's bid opening, as the specifications for the work were not completed in time to be included in the bids received last week.

The Public Housing Authority, named some time ago, is to be sworn in tonight. This is necessary to give the commission a legal status in representing the city in making applications for various programs, etc. Officers and terms may also be set up.

A proposed ordinance raising the overparking fee from 25 cents to $1 may be brought up. The ordinance was called for at a meeting a few weeks ago, but has not yet been presented.

Several Dead After Korean Border Clash

SEOUL (AP) — One American, one South Korean and at least nine North Koreans were killed today and Sunday in a rash of shooting incidents along the Korean frontier. Five Americans also were wounded.

One clash occurred less than one mile from Panmunjom as the 27th joint military armistice commission meeting was in progress.

Military spokesmen said one American soldier and at least one North Korean were killed and four Americans were wounded. Troops from the 2nd U.S. Infantry Division pursued a handful of North Korean infiltrators after the 30-minute firefight, but the North Koreans escaped back across the border.

Vietnam War and Crime Top Issues in Platform

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Republican plank-writers will hand to the national convention Tuesday a platform pledging peace negotiations without surrender in Vietnam and drives against crime and social ills at home.

Sen. Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, chairman of the platform committee which wound up work early Sunday with a compromise plank on Vietnam, indicated he expects no floor battle when the party document goes before the full convention for final approval.

Dirksen said he anticipates no dissenting report from his 102-man committee and added the Vietnam proviso "will come as close to satisfying any candidate we may nominate as anything we might reduce to writing."

A spokesman for Richard M. Nixon, the frontrunner for the nomination, praised the 13,000-word policy declaration as a forthright document embracing "principle and a program of action which hold the promise of restoring to America effective and responsible leadership."

New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller hailed it as a platform "we can win on and I want to run on." California's favorite son candidate, Gov. Ronald Reagan, had no immediate comment.

The 33-page manifesto combined promises for crusades against violence with a wide range of social betterment planks which pleased avowed liberals on domestic affairs.

It carried no price tag for its proposed programs, nor did it call for major tax changes at this time.

It was the Vietnam proviso which remained in dispute right up to the final minutes of the platform group's 18-hour secret session which started Saturday and ran to 3:15 a.m. Sunday.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits of New York, a Rockefeller supporter, and others objected to what they termed a Reagan hard-line on Vietnam in the officially proposed draft language. Its wording held any negotiated settlement "unacceptable" unless the agreement guaranteed the Vietnamese full self-determination.

After behind-the-scenes leadership huddles, Dirksen agreed to revised wording turned in by Rep. Peter Frelinghuysen of New Jersey. The tired platform writers chorused their approval.

Thus the national convention will vote Tuesday night on this commitment:

"We pledge a program for peace in Vietnam — neither peace at any price nor a camouflaged surrender of legitimate U.S. or allied interests — but a positive program that will offer a fair and equitable settlement to all, based on the principle of self-determination, our national interests and the cause of long-range world peace."

"We will sincerely and vigorously pursue peace negotiations as long as they offer any reasonable prospect for a just peace. We pledge to develop a clear and purposeful negotiating position."

The GOP statement accuses (See VIETNAM, Page 4)

Reds Say Platform Is 'Vague'

MOSCOW (AP) — The draft platform proposed by the Republican party for its convention at Miami Beach Fla., came in for sharp criticism today from the official Soviet news agency.

Tass said the platform points out various problems of the country but "proposes no concrete measures for remedying these ills of American society."

"It offers only vague generalities and promises courageous and understanding leadership."

The Tass report, by O. Anichin and H. Freeman, added: "While the foreign policy section of the program attempts to compromise the views of the moderate and ultra wings of the party, it contains strong traces of Goldwaterism, nevertheless."

"Concerning the war in Vietnam, the most burning issue in the country, the Republican program is critical of the administration but offers no clear alternative to its policy."

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Gov. Spiro T. Agnew, favorite son of the 26-vote Maryland delegation, will formally endorse Richard M. Nixon as the Republican presidential nominee, it was learned Monday.

The announcement would be a major blow to the nomination hopes of Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, who is attempting to keep the favorite-son delegations from voting on the first ballots for Nixon, the front-running candidate.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The Republican party opened its 29th National Convention today with Richard M. Nixon the odds-on favorite to get the presidential nomination.

By an Associated Press count the former vice president was less than 100 votes away from slamming home a first ballot victory on Wednesday night.

The two top challengers, Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York and Ronald Reagan of California, had to hope that several favorite son candidates would stand fast — and that when they finally yielded the surge would be away from Nixon.

The powerful Ohio delegation kept these strategic hopes high when a breakfast caucus produced the decision to keep 56 of the state's 58 votes behind the favorite son governor, James A. Rhodes.

But another key favorite son, Maryland's Gov. Spiro T. Agnew said he was leaning toward Nixon and spoke of keeping the 26 delegates in line only until tonight.

A third favorite son, Sen. Hiram Fong of Hawaii, withdrew his candidacy. Seven of the state's 14 delegates immediately opted for Nixon.

The former vice president, who lost his first bid for the presidency in a close shave race with John F. Kennedy in 1960, was flying to this opulent convention scene to take open charge of his campaign for the nomination.

The best way to display optimism is to look beyond the presidential race to the struggle among 15 or so candidates for second spot. And this is what Herbert G. Klein, Nixon's press chief, did in an early morning talk with reporters.

Nixon, said Klein, would not leave the choice of a running mate to the convention but will ask that "his choice" be endorsed.

Primary Election Tomorrow

Tomorrow is primary election day, with voters going to the polls to elect a variety of local state and national candidates.

Polls will open at 6 a.m. in Sedalia and will remain open until 7 p.m. In the county the polls will open at 6 a.m. and close at sunset.

WEATHER

Mostly fair and continued very warm through Tuesday. High Tuesday in lower 90s. Lows tonight in middle 70s.

The temperature Monday was 74 at 7 a.m., and 85 at noon. Low Sunday night was 75.

Lake of the Ozark stage: 58.6 feet; 1.4 feet below full reservoir; no change.

Sunset Monday will be at 8:20 p.m.; sunrise Tuesday at 6:18 a.m.

Republicans Gather With Odds on Nixon

Rockefeller's strategy is to try to keep the several favorite son candidacies among the states alive long enough to give the impression that Nixon does not have the strength to go over the top.

Reagan, meanwhile, was striving to pick off individual delegates — an effort which Rockefeller said at a news conference was meeting with some success.

"I think the movement is to Reagan in many of the delegations," Rockefeller said.

Of his own efforts, he said he is picking up "bits and pieces." The governor said his count showed Nixon with 550, himself with 350 and Reagan with 250.

The AP figured it Nixon 574, Rockefeller 232 and Reagan 159, with 150 delegates uncommitted and a whopping 218 for favorite sons. Needed for victory: 667.

And Reagan predicted he would score "around the 200 mark" on the first ballot. He starts with California's 86 as a favorite son.

Rockefeller beamed, winked and joked as he fielded news-men's questions. But he was unable to report any massive shift of strength to his side and said he wasn't planning any major (See REPUBLICAN, Page 4)

Long, Davis Race Tops State's Political Tests

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The Weather Bureau forecasts hot weather ahead and the political forecast is hotter in Missouri's primary election Tuesday.

The hottest race in the primary is for the Democratic Senatorial nomination. Sen. Edward Long is seeking reelection and faces the hardest fight of his career. He has been engulfed by controversy surrounding a national magazine article linking him with pipefitter union leader Lawrence Callahan.

Long has five men fighting for his seat, but only two of them are serious contenders. So serious, in fact, that political experts call the race "too close to call." The contenders are Lt. Gov. Thomas Eagleton and True Davis of St. Joseph.

An estimated 850,000 voters are expected to go to the polls. In the biggest state primary race the outcomes are hardly in doubt. Incumbent Gov. Warren Hearnes is expected to breeze to Democratic renomination. His Republican opponent almost assuredly will be St. Louis County Supervisor Lawrence Roos, who has only token opposition.

There is one other relatively quiet primary battle. Rep. Thomas Curtis of Webster Groves is considered a sure (See LONG, Page 4)

Farm Co-Op Memberships On Increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farm cooperatives and their memberships have declined in numbers but have increased substantially in business volume, a Department of Agriculture report shows.

The study is for 1965-66 and includes an analysis of the nation's farm co-op marketing supply and service business.

Total volume was $20.6 billion, an increase of 5.1 per cent from the $19.6 billion reported the previous fiscal year. Net volume — not counting business done among co-ops themselves — was $15.6 billion, a gain of 6.1 per cent.

Passenger Trains In a Headon Crash

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. (AP) — Two sections of the Seaboard Coast Line's Silver Meteor passenger train smashed into each other on a curve today and at least 50 riders were reported injured. There was no immediate report of fatalities.

"They're having to pry them out with crowbars and acetylene torches," said Deputy Ed Lockwood of the sheriff's office.

The railroad headquarters at Jacksonville said the northbound Silver Meteor was due at Winter Haven at 12:35 p.m. EDT and the southbound section at 12:14 p.m.

Four diesel engines, two on each train, and nine passenger cars were derailed.

Winter Haven, in central Florida, is about 40 miles east of Tampa.

Five ambulances were rushed to the scene and emergency calls went out for more. Fire-fighting equipment also was dispatched.

Four passenger cars on one train were reported to contain 40 to 50 injured.

A witness said four diesel engines, two on each train, and nine passenger cars left the rails after the collision on a curve two miles south of Winter Haven.

Ambulances were leaving the wreck site in a steady stream with injured.

'Enlightened Capitalist' May Keep Organization

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Leaders of a zealous organization with the ungainly name of Business Executives Move for Vietnam Peace are thinking now of staying together as an economic-political force, even should peace come soon.

The group, formally organized a year ago, now claims 2,500 members. This is only a medium percentage of the members sought, but they are active, dedicated and influential. They feel they have a mission.

Late last week, for example, J. Sinclair Armstrong, a member and former chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission, presented the Republican Platform Committee a five-point resolution for ending the Vietnam war.

Opposition to the war is the unifying purpose of members, but indications are that they will be seeking increasingly larger goals, especially in involving businessmen in the great human issues of the day.

"It would be a pity," said co-chairman Harold Willens of Los Angeles, to let the group dissolve. "This group is moving the country toward a new type of capitalism," he said. "Enlightened capitalism by enlightened capitalists."

As Willens stopped here for business and a television appearance prior to a weekend visit to the Vermont farm of John Kenneth Galbraith, an outspoken supporter, he was asked to explain the phrase.

He reflected, "I see it as an outlook which encompasses more than one's own selfish interest," he said. It means, he continued, "stepping out of a paneled office into the social arena."

Willens is a self-made 53-year-old millionaire, an intense ex-Marine who has been called a "flaming moderate" but who claims to be conservative "in that I'm striving to save the essence of our system of democracy and free enterprise."

Born in poverty—"I was indigent; I needed to struggle for food"—he is now one of the largest landowners on Wilshire Boulevard, vacations in Palm Springs and hobnobs with movie stars at the Beverly Hills Tennis Club.

Thirteen months ago Willens almost deserted his businesses, a land development firm and the Factory Equipment Supply Corp., to tour the nation at his own expense for the group. Along with co-chairman Henry Niles, head of Baltimore Life Insurance Co., he still is on the move.

"It's an endless road to think in terms only of money," he said. "Before your goal is reached another one is set. Only the numbers change."

He was asked to state the immediate goals, other than ending the war, that would be sought in stepping into the social arena.

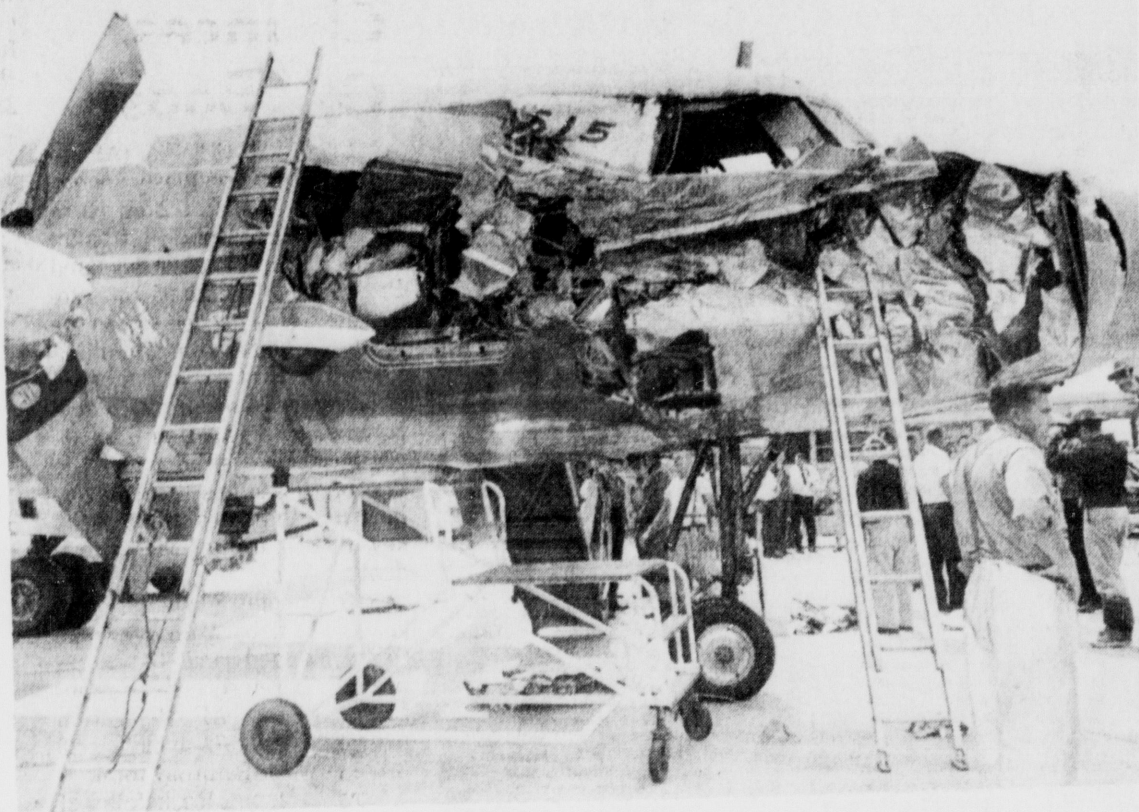

"Some people think we must address ourselves to re-ordering priorities," he replied, and he stated his personal conviction that the United States was over-committed throughout the world.

"We must put political pressure on redirecting foreign policy," he said. "Vietnam is only a symptom of a sickness. We must redirect the military budget. We must modernize our plants."

Willens feels that while billions are being spent on Vietnam the nation has partially forsaken the modernization of its production facilities and the health of its society. This, he feels, subverts a larger goal.

Willens and Niles have attracted many important names to their cause, such as Marriner Eccles, former Federal Reserve chairman, and Theodore Yntema, former Ford Motor financial officer. But they haven't obtained overwhelming support.

Some executives of large corporations have declined to join because to do so involve their firms also. A good deal of the membership, therefore, is made up of wealthy individuals or proprietors of private companies.

Mid-Air Collision

A North Central airliner, its front ripped open after a collision with a private plane over southern Wisconsin, landed safely after flying about ten miles with part of the small plane's wreckage imbedded in its fuselage. The co-pilot of the airliner was the only person injured on the plane, while the pilot and two passengers in the smaller craft were killed. (UPI)

Claims Misunderstanding

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Pope Paul VI said Sunday that his encyclical banning artificial birth control had been misunderstood by some critics and emphasized it did not bar "reasonable" limitation of families. But meanwhile the dispute among Roman Catholics over obedience to the papal ban showed no sign of abating.

Addressing thousands of pilgrims to his summer residence south of Rome, the 70-year-old pontiff said the policy he proclaimed "is not in itself opposed—as some seem to think—to a reasonable limitation of birth, nor to scientific research and therapeutic cures, nor even to a truly responsible parenthood nor to peace and family harmony."

The Pope's encyclical, Of Human Life, renewed the church's prohibition against chemical and mechanical methods of contraception. Total abstinence and the rhythm method of abstinence during the wife's fertility period remain the only methods approved by the church.

Obviously concerned by the growing opposition to his decision, the Pope said: "We know that there are many who have not appreciated our teaching. In fact many oppose it. In a certain sense we can understand this incomprehension and also this opposition."

But he gave no indications of retreating from his decision, and said his encyclical "is derived from the laws of God." While not issued as infallible, the encyclical is considered binding on the world's half-billion Catholics.

America Catholics who went to church on the first Sunday after the encyclical was issued heard every shade of comment from their priests, including outspoken support for the Pope by high church officials. "It's up to you" statements by some lower ranking clerics, and open opposition by other priests and theologians.

In Washington, the Catholic University of America announced that the number of American Catholic theologians opposing the Pope's ban on artificial contraception had risen to 222.

"I am surprised and saddened by the actions of these gentlemen—actions which are setting the church on fire," said Washington's Patrick Cardinal O'Boyle in a sermon urging obedience to the Pope.

Sky Diver Killed In Accident

TONGANOXIE, Kan. (AP) — A veteran sky diver was killed Sunday in a free fall from about 10,000 feet. His parachute was supposed to open at 2,500 feet but failed to do so.

The victim was Donald Edward Bill, 25, employed as a computer programmer in Kansas City. His mother is Mrs. Laure E. Bill of Hartford, Conn. Bill was a member of the K-Mo Sports Jumpers Club of Kansas City, which uses an airstrip near Tonganoxie. It was the first fatal accident in the club's nine-year history.

Four weeks ago the Kansas City Times printed a feature story and pictures about the club's activities, and Bill was one of those shown jumping from an airplane. He had made 45 jumps then.

sky diving and the awareness of danger, told the reporter at that time:

"Sure, I think all divers are a little frightened. If they aren't, they are fools, because then they will begin to get a little careless about what they are doing."

Sheriff Dan Hawes said the cause of the failure of Bill's parachute had not been determined.

Booklet To Handle Any Crime

By H. L. SCHWARTZ III
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI today released a booklet outlining ways airline personnel can help it handle almost any crime, including the one that currently is getting the most attention—hijacking.

The booklet, however, offers no helpful hints on how to prevent hijacking.

The omission tends to underscore a quandary facing not only government sleuths, but the airline industry as well which concedes little is being done or can be done to prevent the crime.

An FBI spokesman said the new booklet, entitled "Airlines and The FBI," was planned before the current rash of hijackings. But he said it was a revision of one that first came out during a spectacular series of similar incidents in 1961.

In a forward, FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover said the booklet's purpose is to suggest "various measures which the airlines and their personnel can take to help this bureau perform its job."

Hoover said the booklet will be widely distributed among airline employees.

The booklet says the FBI has jurisdiction over "most criminal offenses occurring on interstate or foreign flights."

In the booklet's only specific reference to hijacking, it is listed only as illegal and under the FBI's jurisdiction.

Other crimes listed include murder, rape, assault, robbery, damage to or destruction of an airplane or any facility used in its operation, carrying a concealed deadly or dangerous weapon, giving false or threatening reports and stealing a plane.

The booklet cautions airline employees not to tamper with physical evidence, to be alert, to make sure all pertinent information is taken down when accepting checks, and to try to remember complete and accurate descriptions of suspects.

"It also urges personnel to make note when taking a threatening telephone call of background sounds, the caller's accent, or any indication the caller is a juvenile, drunk, mentally retarded or unusually familiar with the airline's operations."

Since the first of the year there have been eight hijackings of airliners over the United States in which the gunman or gunmen ordered the plane flown to Cuba.

Air Force Puts the Heat On

By PAT GORE

Associated Press Writer
DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — They're cooking people at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base here.

It's an experiment in human reactions to extreme heat, with applications to the aerospace program with supersonic flying. Three times a day airmen are put into a four-foot-high oven and the heat is increased to 300 and 400 degrees Fahrenheit.

Fifteen minutes at 400 degrees and a small steak should be done rare.

Some of the human subjects can stand as much as 15 minutes at 300 degrees, well over the boiling point of water, but two or three minutes has been the limit at 400 degrees, said Capt. Grant Callin, 27, of the Aerospace Medical Research Laboratories.

Callin's first conclusion: "That the human body is a lot tougher than you'd think."

One of the most significant conclusions reached since the program began in March, says Callin, is that astronauts could survive re-entry through the earth's atmosphere if their cabin cooling system failed.

"This sort of information could lead to the elimination of a lot of bulky and costly systems from spacecraft," Callin explained.

"The facts we are establishing now will have even greater application in the future," said Callin, "when flying at three times the speed of sound becomes commonplace." Callin has made the "run" 12 times himself. He isn't asking any of his men to do more.

A volunteer wears normal lightweight flying clothing but has thermometers and other instruments attached to his body.

The first sensation the subject experiences, said Callin, is discomfort, as the temperature is raised sharply.

"Then one begins to sweat; euphoria ensues. It's quite remarkable how perspiration protects the skin at these extremely high temperatures," he said.

As the temperature goes up rapidly, Callin said the subject becomes uncomfortable again. He puts his hands over his burning ears. He stops breathing through his nose as hot air blisters his nostrils. He licks his burning lips.

If the pain becomes too great, the volunteer can have the test stopped. Otherwise, said Callin, it continues until his heartbeat reaches 170 beats per minute. (A normal heart beat is 72 times a minute, rising to 90 with exercise.)

Draws the Line

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — A Boise restaurant owner apparently doesn't mind patrons who don't wear coats and ties in summer heat but he did post this sign: "No shoes, no shirt—no service."

His 11 subjects, between the ages of 23 and 37, were surprised at how quickly the hottest air cooled on being inhaled.

"We found that short, fat subjects held out best in heat as they do in cold," Callin noted.

After the test, the volunteer is helped from the oven onto a stretcher, where he lies until the physician allows him up. Callin said weight loss through perspiration was very slight, perhaps one-tenth of a pound, and that blistered ears had been the only injuries from the tests.

He expects to complete the program early in September.

Callin paid tribute to his volunteers. One airman, he said, had several times been dragged from the oven refusing to admit that he had reached his limit, even when his heartbeat reached 180.

HUMAN BRAINS WIRED FOR ELECTRICITY

By Carl J. Hamilton, D.C.

Not long ago several newspapers carried a story about the human brain having wires stuck into it through holes in the skull and mild shocks of electricity being applied.

The shocks of electricity or electric currents so alter the human nerve currents that no pain is felt but noticeable chemical changes take place. The number and types of blood cells change. Hormone production is altered.

The studies are just beginning, according to the professor of Neurosurgery at Tulane University.

That outside interference can alter human nerve-wave patterns and thus cause chemical changes in the body fluids, making them acid or alkaline, etc., or that the blood cells and various hormone producing glands are affected by such disturbances, is no great news to those of us, who for many years, have been clearing the interferences from human nerve lines and observing the renewed life and glandular activity that results.

It is only strange and new to those who are just now observing the human nervous system from this angle.

Nerve-wave pattern interference caused many symptoms of illness in this actual case taken from our files — while removal of nerve interference caused symptoms to vanish.

A forty-six-year-old housewife complained of severe menapausal symptoms with stabbing low back pains, extreme nervousness, mental anxiety, and elapse of memory. She also suffered severe headaches, dizzy spells, heart palpitations, difficult breathing along with indigestion, frequent urination and constipation. She came to the Hamilton Chiropractic Offices for correction of her menapausal syndrome because a patient recommended us to her for that complaint.

Specialists treated her unsuccessfully for over a year. When twelve "shock" treatments failed to help her, she was told she would never be well again — but that an operation might help.

Our spinal analysis and spinal X-rays indicated defective energization of the pelvic area and subluxated (misaligned) vertebrae in the neck causing nerve pressure and spinal cord interference. Under corrective adjustments, realignment was made and interference removed. The complaints rapidly disappeared as normal function was permitted to return. She was in for her periodic check-up last week. She's still enjoying good health.

While our critics go about saying it can't be done, we have already done it. Results speak for themselves.

Have your present and past treatments made you well? If not, what can you lose except bad health? Investigate. You might regain good health.

Nixon's Chances Get Boost

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Support from previously uncommitted delegates boosted Richard M. Nixon's solid first ballot strength in The Associated Press survey within 95 votes today of the 667 needed to win the Republican presidential nomination.

But the 137 uncommitted delegates, a fluid situation in some southern delegations and the fate of nine states with "favorite son" candidates still held the key to the former vice president's hopes.

Nixon's total, including delegates bound by primary votes, those pledged and those expressing preferences at caucuses and in AP delegation polls, stood at 572, which is 28 more than his Saturday total.

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York was up 24 to 232.

The Sedalia Democrat. Monday, August 5, 1968—3

while Gov. Ronald Reagan of California, pressing vigorously for southern support, had 161. Besides the 137 uncommitted, 231 are held by favorite sons.

Nixon's gains included eight from Idaho, four from Wyoming, three from Illinois and Connecticut, and lesser numbers from Delaware, Florida, Texas, Colorado, Utah, Minnesota and Maine. Rockefeller picked up 13 in Rhode Island, four in Illinois, three in Minnesota and others in Colorado, Vermont, Maine and Puerto Rico.

Cargo space of the Boeing 707 jetliner is equal in size to the entire fuselage of a DC-4.

A MESSAGE OF IMPORTANCE TO THE VOTERS

True Davis Democrat for U.S. Senator

Fellow Missourian:

1968 is shaping up as a year of decision. At home and abroad crises are brewing for America. The times require experienced, decisive leadership. Among the many candidates for the United States Senate, one man, True Davis, stands head and shoulders above the contenders in leadership, wisdom, and integrity.

It is our concern that Missouri should be wisely, and faithfully represented in the United States Senate. It is not often that men of True Davis' calibre decide to enter public life. Their efforts should be encouraged, not retarded. True has proven himself as a businessman, farmer, diplomat, and public servant.

Financial worries plague our nation. True Davis is qualified to seek the best solution. He has served as Assistant Secretary of the United States Treasury. With your help, order can be restored to our economy.

American prestige is low abroad. Confidence must return to our foreign relations. True Davis has represented the United States at many international conferences. He was picked by President Kennedy to be Ambassador to Switzerland, the diplomatic crossroads of Europe. True's experience in this area convinces us he is the best man for the job of U.S. Senator.

Tomorrow—Tuesday, August 6—is your opportunity to send True Davis to the Senate. He needs your help and the assistance of all concerned Missourians.

Your next Senator should be True!

Sincerely,

C. W. Mathieson
Chairman

Accidents

Lloyd Gordy, 64, a retired Sedalia fireman, was painfully injured about 7:15 p.m. Sunday in a two-car accident on Cedar Drive just south of the Sunnyside School, north of Sedalia.

Gordy was taken to Bothwell Hospital by his son, C. W. Gordy, a driver for the Sedalia Fire Department, who, as a driver for the Sedalia Ambulance Service, answered the emergency call. The family had been notified of the accident and in turn called the son for the ambulance.

At the hospital Dr. R. A. Enoch treated him for abrasions on his hands, face, left knee and on the left side and small part of his back. He was admitted to the hospital for observation.

Gordy's 11-year-old grandson, Mark Alan Ficken, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Ficken, Route 5, Sedalia, was treated by Dr. Enoch for cuts on the left arm. Another grandson Billy Joe Ficken, 8, escaped injury.

Gordy and his two grandsons had been to the Ficken farm where they took care of some farm chores for Mr. and Mrs. Ficken and were returning to Sedalia when the accident occurred.

According to Trooper Sam Morris of the State Highway Patrol, a 1965 Pontiac convertible driven by Lloyd Elmer Sims, 23, was headed south on Cedar Drive and started to pass the 1952 Rambler sedan, driven by Gordy, and apparently clipped the left rear of the Rambler, causing Gordy to lose control of the car. Both cars swerved to the right and crashed through a barbed wire fence and into a field.

Gordy was thrown from the car as he swerved, but his two grandsons remained in the vehicle.

Sims was issued a patrol summons to appear before Magistrate Frank T. Armstrong on a charge of driving while intoxicated. He was released on a $1,000 signed bond.

Wreckers from Bacon's towed the two cars to Sedalia.

One person was injured and a 1963 Mercury sedan was demolished in a one-vehicle accident at Broadway and Center about 1:45 a.m. Sunday. The driver of the car was Harold W. Cruse, 43, 201 East Jefferson. Police reported he said he had fallen asleep at the wheel of his car.

Cruse received a laceration on the right side of his forehead and a contusion of the forehead. He was taken to the Bothwell Hospital by the Sedalia Ambulance Service, where Dr. Spencer Hopkins rendered medical treatment.

According to the police report, Cruse was driving west on Broadway when the car swerved over the lawn of Gill's Standard Service Station, continued on west knocking down a fire hydrant, crossed Center Street knocking down a speed sign and crashed into a utility light pole, ripping the concrete base out of the ground.

The car was towed away by the Darnell wrecker.

Slight damage resulted to two vehicles in an accident in the 300 block on North Lamine about 7:35 a.m. Sunday. No injuries were reported.

Involved was a 1960 Plymouth two-door sedan, being backed on North Lamine, and a parked 1962 Cadillac sedan, owned by Joseph Pender. The Plymouth was driven by Daniel L. Bridgewater, 300 West Cooper.

A 1950 Oldsmobile sedan was extensively damaged about noon Sunday when the driver lost control of the vehicle and it overturned on Clarendon Road near gate 4 at the State Fairgrounds. No injuries were reported.

Police reported the car was being driven by Dale A. Blatterman, 18, of 1715 South Ohio, was headed south, made one turn east and as the driver turned back south at the next turn, he lost control and it overturned and rolled over on its side.

Darnell's wrecker towed it from the scene.

Michael Grinstead, 5-year-old son of Mrs. Marilyn Grinstead, 1841 South Beacon, severely injured his left hand when he caught it in an electric water pump at the farm of his aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Brand, on Route 2, Sedalia.

Dr. J. W. Maunders amputated the index finger at the second joint, set a fracture of the middle finger and treated other fingers for abrasions and cuts.

Two teenagers were injured, not seriously, in a collision of automobiles in front of 1406 South Carr about 4:30 p.m. Sunday. Considerable damage

Pilots Free Again

The three American pilots who were released by North Vietnam, where they had been prisoners of war, are greeted by their wives at Kennedy Airport in New York after their flight home via Europe. From the left are Major James

F. Low, 43, and his wife of Sausalito, Calif.; Major Fred N. Thompson, 32, and his wife of Taylors, S.C.; and Captain Joe B. Carpenter, 37, and his wife of Victorville, Calif. (UPI) resulted to three vehicles involved.

A 1964 Chevrolet two-door sedan was being driven on Carr by Dale Allen Webb, 15, son of Mrs. Jewell Adams, 502 East 13th street, and according to the police report crashed into a parked 1962 Buick sedan owned by John W. Hill, 1406 South Carr, which was knocked back into the front end of a 1964 International panel truck of the Grand Drive-In Cleaners.

The front end of the Chevrolet was damaged, the left front fender and the left rear of the Buick damaged and the front end of the truck on the left side damaged.

According to the police report, the Webb boy stated he looked at some kids playing in the street and hit the car.

Webb was taken to Bothwell Hospital by the police, where Dr. R. A. Enoch treated him for a lacerated lip. Bob Karigan, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Karigan, 412 East 12th street, was taken to the hospital by his father where Dr. A. L. Lowe treated him for a cut chin.

Police Report

Sarah Christian, 522 North Osage, reported to the police that between 8 and 9:40 a.m. Sunday someone kicked the night latch off of the door at her home. She was not at home at the time.

A prowler was reported in the 500 block on West Second Street about 9:20 p.m. Saturday. Frank Ault, 518 West Second, reported discovering a man in his garden and when he caught him the man reported he was just hungry. No charges were filed.

Police were called to 209 West 11th about 12:30 a.m. Sunday where a prowler was reported. Police were unable to locate anyone in the area.

Two loaves of sandwich bread were reported stolen from the residence at 2221 East 12th sometime early Saturday evening. Entrance was gained through a front window, according to the report given police by Machella Aldrich.

Don E. Thompson, manager of the Derby Service Station on South Highway 65, reported to the police about 11:30 a.m. Sunday that a thief had stolen an undetermined amount of money from a money bag which was in the glove compartment of his car.

According to the police, Thompson was parked on the Thompson Hills parking lot while he was eating at the Katz Drug Store. On returning to his car he found the glove compartment open and the money bag on the floor.

It was estimated the thief took approximately $100.

thing in the Republican Senatorial race. But that's the last of the one-sided contests.

In addition to the Democratic Senatorial race, the eight-way race for Lieutenant Governor is a steaming affair. Of the eight men, four are considered to have chances. They are William S. Morris of Kansas City, Edward L. Dowd of St. Louis, State Senator John E. Dwons of St. Joseph and James W. Shaffer of Kansas City.

Of those four Morris and Dowd have drawn the most publicity with their charges and countercharges and under-world connections.

announcement between now and Wednesday night, when the balloting begins.

The Ohioans, meanwhile, decided at a breakfast meeting to stand behind Rhodes, at least on the first round. All but two of the 58 succeeded to this tactic. The two mavericks were considered Nixon men.

The delegation chairman, John S. Andrews, said Reagan was trying to meet with the group and "we are attempting to work that out."

At the same time, Herbert G. Klein, Nixon's chief press spokesman, was telling reporters the former vice president did not intend to leave the choice of a running mate to the delegates.

Rather, Klein said, Nixon "will ask the convention to nominate his choice" and will disclose his choice after the presidential nominee is picked.

Nixon was due to fly in from New York later today to direct his drive from up close. There has been no doubt, though, that he has been calling all the shots. The third in the field, Reagan, predicted the fight for the top spot would go beyond one ballot. He told newsmen cheerfully that the race was still open.

Both Rockefeller and Reagan brushed aside the possibility of second place on the GOP ticket. "I was not built for standby equipment," Rockefeller said.

Said Reagan: "I ruled myself out of that spot some time ago."

Reagan, quoted as telling an Alabama delegation caucus "I'm in this to win," was by all odds the busiest candidate in this overstuffed and overheated convention town.

Taking time out for a $500 plate fund-raising gala, Reagan scooted about town, meeting with southern and Rocky Mountain delegations in his efforts to win first ballot support away from Nixon.

Networks Braced For Convention

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — With three years of state elections and this year's presidential primaries behind as warm-up sessions, the three major television networks have plunged into their quadrennial ordeal: The presidential conventions, campaigns and election.

Close to 2,000 television reporters and technicians, tons of equipment—NBC alone weighed in at 65 tons—including hundreds of cameras and videotape machines were ready for the opening session in Miami Beach this morning. All three networks have been planning their coverage plans lavishly for weeks between programs and trying to build interest with special programs.

Since the days when there were few viewers and fewer sets, television has been honing its skills. Few will forget the technical expertise with which, four years ago, the networks showed viewers in live and lively detail the trip of President Johnson from the White House to the Atlantic City convention hall.

Convention-covering, in spite of all the milling around and oratory which occurs more or less on schedule in a predetermined location, is particularly difficult for television. Political conventions remain essentially a reporter's rather than a camera's story since most of the headlines are made behind closed doors.

In addition, television has the problem of filling the long hours of routine business and speech-making during the first two days of the session. The vitally interesting part, the nominations and balloting for president are scheduled for Wednesday.

While both CBS and NBC plan their usual gavel-to-gavel live coverage, the television industry is focused on the decision of ABC to handle the story primarily by means of a nightly, 90-minute wrap-up of the day's highlights.

On Sunday, all three networks devoted their usual daytime interview programs to the Republican story. CBS' "Face the Nation" had Gov. Ronald Reagan of California answering questions. NBC, which had invited front-running candidate Richard M. Nixon to split a special hour-long session of "Meet the Press," gave the whole time spot to Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York when the former vice president declined. Later in the day there were special convention programs on both NBC and CBS.

Networks are always loath to talk finances, but informed estimates peg the cost to the three networks for Republican convention coverage alone at between $8 million and $10 million. That includes the massive Miami concentration of men and equipment as well as the cost of pre-empting regular programs.

The intense coverage invariably results in complaints by viewers deprived of entertainment programs—particularly during the long and sometimes droning speeches and ceremonies. Thus, the ABC plan to compress the day's highlights and some analysis into an edited summary will be watched closely. So, too, will the ratings of each evening roundup.

If what ABC calls its "unconventional" convention coverage strikes the public's fancy, it could start a trend.

Navy Pilots Claim 20 Barges Destroyed

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. Navy pilots of the carrier Constellation reported they destroyed 20 barges Saturday in raids over the panhandle of North Vietnam. Cmdr. Edward C. Bauer, 38, of Columbia, Mo., commander of an attack squadron said "we had a real good day. They must not have been expecting us because it was pretty quiet."

Two Mariner spacecraft that will make "fly-by" probes of Mars early next year will carry more instruments and attempt to fly closer than the previous flight in 1965, which resulted in 21 television pictures taken from 10,500 to 6,000 miles distant. Think More Pilots May Be Set Free

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three U.S. pilots, reunited with wives and children after up to seven months in North Vietnam prisons, underwent routine medical checkups and processing today before heading to their homes.

They said they believe more captured American airmen will be released.

The three—Maj. James F. Low, 43, of Sausalito, Calif.; Maj. Fred N. Thompson, 32, of Taylor, S. C., and Capt. Joe V. Carpenter, 37, of Victorville, Calif.—hardly appeared to need any medical attention as they stepped off an Air Force plane Sunday night looking fit and cheerful.

"It is awfully nice to be home," said Low, a Korean war ace who was captured last Dec. 16 after his F4C exploded from heavy ground fire over North Vietnam.

Carpenter's three children rushed out to meet him when the plane came to a stop at Andrews Air Force Base near Washington. All three wives had joined the pilots in New York.

The pilots talked to newsmen briefly and were immediately admitted to the base hospital for the checkups. The Air Force said as soon as the processing is finished they "will go on a well-deserved leave pending reassignment."

Except for the New York-Washington flight, the pilots had come home by commercial airline and Low said in Bangkok that the decision was made "in the best interests of the prisoners in Hanoi."

When the first three U.S. airmen to be released by Hanoi returned by military aircraft last February, antiwar groups acting as intermediaries protested future release of more pilots had been jeopardized.

Carpenter, asked if even more captured pilots will be released, replied: "We can assume so."

Washing, said he had not been subjected to any "psychological testing."

Thompson said the food served in his North Vietnam prison was different from American food but "substantial." He said his weight is about the same now as when he was captured.

Thompson was captured March 20 and Carpenter Feb. 15 when their South Vietnam-based jetfighters were hit by enemy groundfire. Low had flown his missions from Thailand.

The Carpenter children on hand to join their parents were Joseph, 12, Laura, 9, and Rochelle, 6.

Hanoi had announced the release of the pilots July 18 but they did not arrive in Vientiane, Laos, until last Friday. The flight from Bangkok included stops in the Middle East and Europe.

They were accompanied by three people who helped arrange the release: Stewart Meacham of Philadelphia, an officer of the American Friends Service Committee; Anne Scheer of Berkeley, Calif., wife of an editor of Ramparts magazine, and Vernon Grizzard, an antidraft organizer for the Students for Democratic Society in Cambridge, Mass.

'Career' No Concern Of Actor

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer
HONOLULU (AP) — "People ask me if I came to the islands because I was bitter about Hollywood. Of course not. I had 30 wonderful years in Hollywood. But I found out there are other things in life besides facing a camera."

Richard Denning, still as deucedly handsome as when he romanced Dorothy Lamour in South Sea epics, was telling about his new life. Three years ago he gave up his acting career to spend most of his time on the neighboring island of Maui. He was engaged in his favorite sport of skin-diving when the call came for him to go back to work. He was asked to replace Lew Ayres as Hawaii's governor in the new CBS television series, "Hawaii Five-O." Ayres had played the role in the two-hour pilot film and was scheduled to continue in the series; but the part proved too infrequent and Ayres withdrew.

"I'm grateful to Lew," said Denning. "This is exactly what I have been looking for. I told my agent: I don't want to work unless it's something in the islands and doesn't require much time."

How can he afford such independence? He explained:

"I started at Paramount in 1936, and I was doing well by the time the war came along. Co-starring with Doty Lamour in 'Beyond the Blue Horizon' wasn't bad."

"After four years in the service, I came back to find I had been replaced. Paramount had to put me back on the contract list, but I wasn't given any pictures. For an 18-month period after I left the studio, I didn't work at all."

"That's when I learned to conserve my resources. My wife (actress Evelyn Ankers) and our daughter and I lived in a trailer that was parked at Malibu in the summer and in Palm Springs in the winter. Our total housing expenses were $40 a month. I had 100 lobster traps at the beach, and we ate the catch or sold it to buy other food."

"Then I got a job starring on radio with Lucille Ball in 'My Favorite Husband,' and things started opening up for me. But I never forgot the lesson of how simply life can be led."

Denning appeared in such films as "Weekend with Father" and "The Creature from the Black Lagoon," but his real fortune came with television series. He played the lead in four: "Mr. and Mrs. North," "Flying Doctor," "Michael Shayne" and "Karen."

"Each time I did a series, my wife said never again," he remarked. "Your life is not your own when you're starring in a television show; you have to give up everything—friends, hobbies, even your family."

Doctors Provided Guidelines

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — A committee of Harvard University faculty members say "brain death" or "irreversible coma" should be a basis for pronouncing death even though in some cases the heart may continue to beat.

A set of medical guidelines for such a definition, published in today's issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association, says it is needed for two reasons:

—"Improvements in resuscitation and supportive measures which have led to increased efforts to save those who are desperately injured: Individuals whose hearts continue to beat but whose brains are irreversibly damaged."

—"The use of obsolete criteria for the definition of death which can lead to controversy in obtaining organs for transplantation."

The 12-member committee is composed of the faculties of medicine, public health, divinity and arts and sciences. Its chairman is Dr. Henry K. Beecher, professor of research in anesthesia at Harvard and the Massachusetts General Hospital.

The group set numerous guidelines for determining the characteristics of a "permanently nonfunctioning brain," including clinical tests for unresponsiveness and unresponsiveness, lack of movement and breathing, and absence of reflexes. It also suggested obtaining confirmatory data by the electroencephalogram.

The committee said that clinical and other tests should be repeated at least 24 hours after the initial tests. They said final determination of death should be made only by a physician, not by the family, and that the decision "should be made by physicians not involved in any later effort to transplant organs or tissue from the deceased individual."

The committee said it thought that if new criteria for pronouncing death in an individual sustaining irreversible coma as a result of permanent brain damage were to be adopted by the medical profession such could form the basis for change in the current legal concept of death.

Grim Lesson Unlearned

Two-hundred million Americans have a short respite from the statisticians and exhorters before another long holiday weekend turns the publicity spotlight on traffic safety again.

Those thousands who were unfortunate enough to have been involved in the accidents that marred the July 4th weekend but who were fortunate enough to have survived, or those who merely witnessed the results of the high-speed impact of human flesh against metal, will think of little else but traffic safety for a long time to come, however.

For them, then, the latest statistics from the National Safety Council:

Since the beginning of the year, Americans have been killing themselves with internal combustion machines at an average rate of 134 a day. The total of traffic deaths up to June 1 was 20,380, or about 6 per cent above the 19,270 registered for the same period in 1967. About 700,000 other persons have been disabled in traffic accidents.

If our soldiers were suffering casualties of the same magnitude in Vietnam, there would be a march on Washington that would pale all others into significance.

But slaughter on the battlefield and slaughter on the highways are not the same thing. The one is man-caused and man-stoppable; the other we seem to accept as being largely dealt by the hand of fate.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Rockefeller Leads in Experience

—Rockefeller Prediction—

Exactly 10 years ago — August 25, 1958 — Drew Pearson made this interesting comment: "The Republican state convention meeting in Rochester... is grooming a man who may challenge Vice President Nixon for the presidential nomination — Nelson Rockefeller."

Today in Miami the real showdown for the GOP nomination is between Nixon and Rockefeller.

By DREW PEARSON AND JACK ANDERSON
MIAMI — In 1942 when Nelson Rockefeller was appointed coordinator of Latin-American affairs by Franklin Roosevelt there was a howl of protest from the countries he was supposed to coordinate.

The Latin-American press pointed to the fact that for years American oil companies had exploited them; that the American fleet had fired at Vera Cruz and Tampico in 1917 because of a dispute over oil; yet Roosevelt had put in charge of Latin-American affairs a scion of the family which had built up the biggest oil fortune in the world.

One year later, however, the Latin-American press was singing a different tune. In one year they had found in Nelson Rockefeller a friend and champion. It discovered the truth of the remark which Bernard Gimbel made to John D. Rockefeller, Jr., Nelson's father, when John D. arrived a little early for the dedication of a new Gimbel Brothers department store.

Mr. Gimbel remarked on John D.'s boys — Laurence, who had gone in for helping the government acquire national parks; John D. III, who was helping the city of New York build Lincoln Center; Winthrop, who was on the way to becoming governor of Arkansas; and Nelson, who had just become governor of New York.

"You deserve a lot of credit for raising a family like that," said Mr. Gimbel.

"Mrs. Rockefeller had something to do with it," replied John D. Jr.

—Hated Grandfather—

The dedication of the Rockefeller family to public service is now such an old story that it's almost a new story. Few people of this generation have any recollection of how bitterly old John D. was hated at the turn of the century.

Today his grandsons — especially Nelson — are loved by those who hated old John D., and hated by those who admired the economic buccaneering of his grandfather. It is the extreme right wing of the Republican party which condones the monopolistic tactics that built up the Rockefeller fortune. And it

J. David Brothers, president of American Trucking Associations, puts it this way: "For too long, Americans have looked at the highway accident rate as a sort of a lottery and that nothing could be done to increase the safety factor."

He thinks the situation is changing, however, and that at long last we are seeing "solid, permanent confrontation of Americans with their dismal neglect of traffic safety."

It is to be hoped that he is not being unrealistically optimistic. Anyone who does much driving these days—and who doesn't?—can only wonder that there are not more accidents. Only the good sense of the majority of drivers, plus a large measure of luck, keeps the toll from being higher than it is. But what is needed is more good sense by more drivers and less dependence on the element of luck.

One journalist who covered some 5,000 miles in a vacation trip between his home in the Midwest and HemisFair in San Antonio recently reports that in all those miles he saw only one driver of a 1968 car using his shoulder harness.

It is difficult to believe, after all the emphasis there has been on traffic safety in the past two years, that this should be possible.

We have a lot to learn yet, and until we begin learning, the exhorters and statisticians will have little reason to rest.

is these admirers of old John D. who booed his grandson at San Francisco to the point where he could not speak.

Seldom has a candidate of either party been treated more discourteously. And the big question at Miami is — can the man who was booed in 1964 stage a comeback in 1968? If so, even the Democrats admit that he could win in November.

—Nelson's Record—

To get the answer let's first look at the record. Few men are more experienced in government today than Nelson Rockefeller. Under Roosevelt and Truman he became Assistant Secretary of State, in which capacity he helped negotiate the Treaty of Chapultepec, binding the Americas to resist foreign communism.

He went on to serve as Undersecretary of HEW under Eisenhower and later on Ike's White House staff, where he was not happy. Nelson is a man who wants to get things done, and Ike was surrounded with men who wanted to sit tight. Frustrated, he got tired and went back to New York, though not before selling Ike the No. 1 achievement of the 1955 summit conference in Geneva.

One of the authors of this column, lunching with Eisenhower in 1948, had tried to sell him on a policy of people-to-people friendship with the countries behind the iron curtain. The Friendship Train had dramatically pioneered this kind of people-to-people contact. But Ike was negative.

Later, at Geneva, facing conference failure, Eisenhower accepted the idea, as refurbished by Nelson Rockefeller, and people-to-people friendship became the No. 1 achievement of the summit meeting. It has been a triumph of American policy ever since.

Bored with so little other accomplishment in Washington, however, Nelson went up to New York to run for governor. He ran against a highly popular Democrat who had made a great record — Averell Harriman.

But Nelson had behind him a long record of Rockefeller public service; the gift of the beautiful UN building to the United Nations; the development of Lincoln Center for the new Metropolitan Opera House; a gift of around $40,000,000 over the years to Negro colleges; other gifts to Catholic and Jewish charities.

Several hundred million dollars used for the public good, especially when accompanied by sincerity, dedication, and charm, is hard to beat. Nelson was elected governor of New York in 1958, and has been reelected by increasing majorities ever since.

A lot of Republicans don't like Rockefeller, consider him much too liberal. Remarkable Alexander "Casey" Jones, former editor of the Washington Post, then editor of the Syracuse Herald: "I've been a Republican all my life. I want to keep on being a Republican. But this fellow Rockefeller is making it awfully hard for me."

Essentially this is why Rockefeller was booed at San Francisco and why he is the underdog in Miami.

The inescapable fact is that a lot of Republicans would rather lose with Nixon than win with Rockefeller. But what Rocky says is true: in order to win, the Republicans have to capture a sizeable slice of Democratic votes; and he could do it. That is the choice facing the Republican party at Miami.

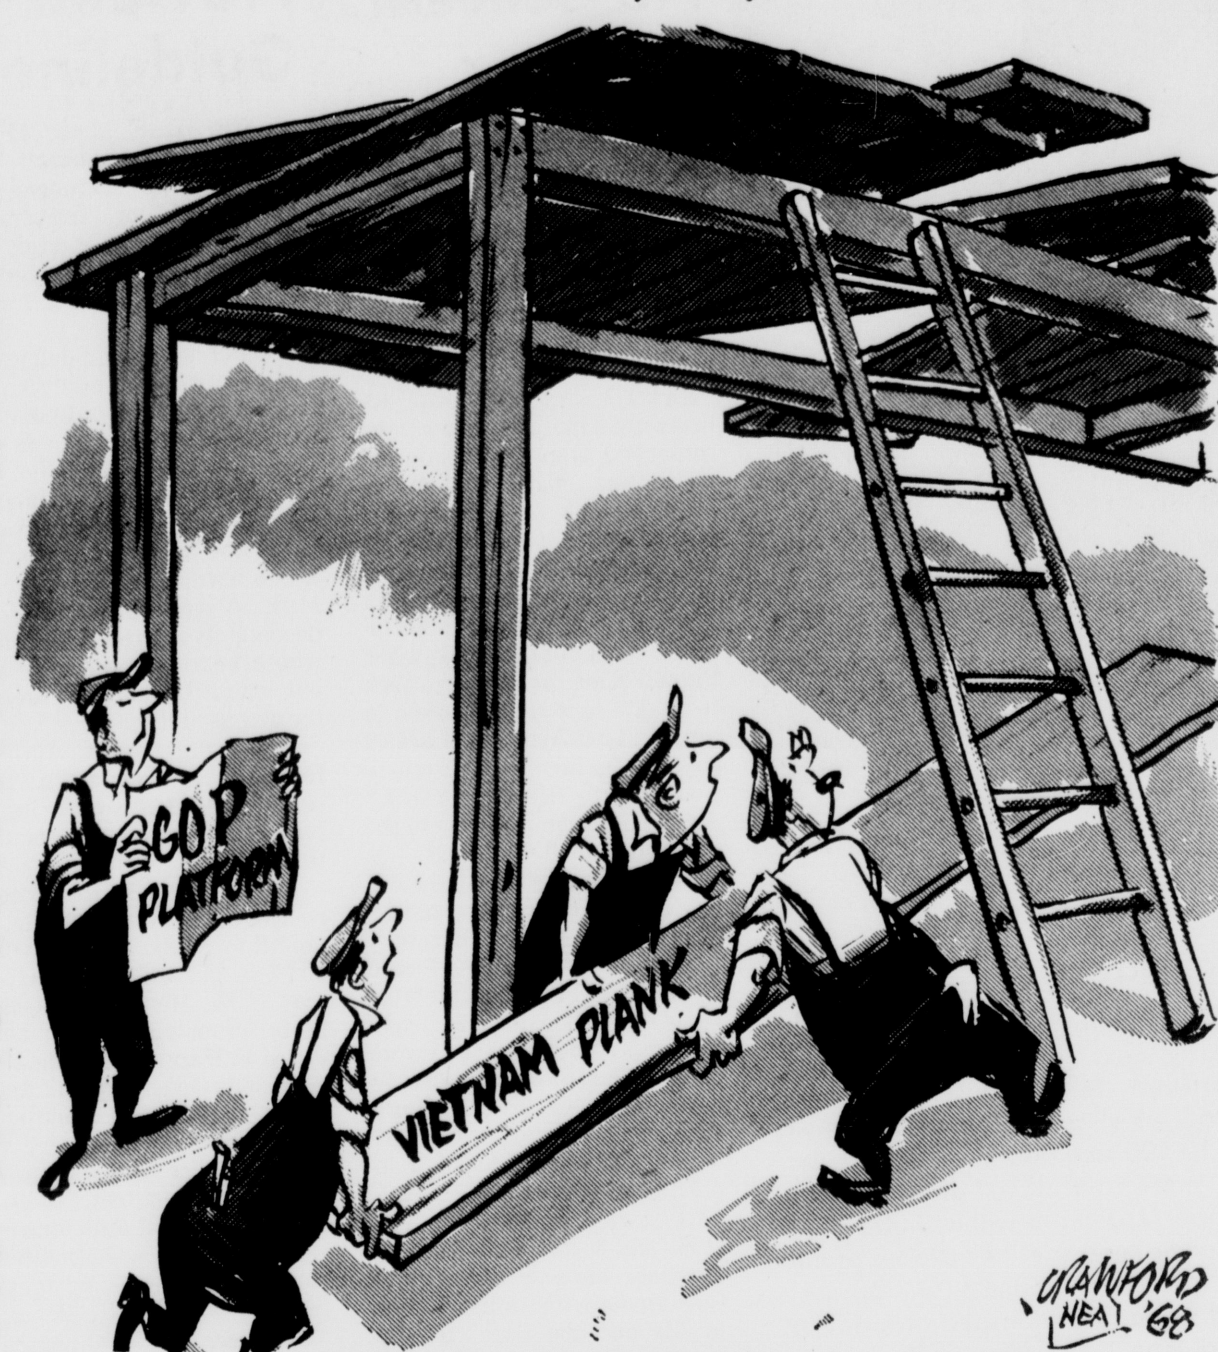

Democrat Pickups

A man went to a country home to buy some eggs and found the woman who lived there dressed in a blouse and bright red shorts and riding a grass mower which just didn't seem to be cutting short enough.

She told the man her troubles and asked him if he would pull the lever for her to put the blade lower. The man tugged and tugged and after a real struggle got it lowered. She got on the mower and sailed around the yard but results were the same. It didn't cut one little bit of grass.

When she came to a stop again she told the man she thought maybe he had better put the lever back where it was. She didn't know what was the matter. Then she asked him to see if the mower had a blade. He looked, and sure enough that was the trouble. The reason the mower didn't cut the grass was because her husband had taken the blade out to sharpen it, and whether the lever is up or down a mower just doesn't cut unless it has a blade. H. L.

Proving Pain

As the result of an auto accident, you are left with continuing pains in your shoulder.

At least, so you say. But the driver of the other car thinks you are faking. If it comes to a showdown in court, would your word alone—without supporting evidence actually feel a patient's pain, he can find out a great deal through his instruments. For example:

Pain may speed the patient's pulse. It may affect his blood pressure, his metabolism, and his respiration. It may even put extra zigzags into his electrocardiogram.

Moreover, a doctor can learn much more by watching a patient's expression. As one judge put it:

"There are symptoms of pain that write their story on one's countenance as clearly as lightning scribbles in the sky."

Write a court list also to the non-scientific observations of a layman? Generally yes, because these too may be revealing.

Thus, in one case, an accident victim's pain was proven through the testimony of a fellow patient in his hospital room. The patient vividly recalled the victim's moans, groans, and weeping.

Of course, any method of proving that pain is present may also be used to prove that it is absent. Both instruments and observation, both doctor and layman may—in proper circumstances—help to expose false complaints.

One woman, claiming injury in a bus accident, said she had severe pains in her back. But a doctor noticed that when she was touching that area, she winced far too much in some places and far too little in others.

Result: she collected nothing at all.

BETTY CANARY Pointed Lesson

I have envied some of my friends—the ones who were older and had no baby sitter problems. "Someday!" I would promise myself, while cleaning graham cracker crumbs from the tub before my bath, "I won't have to go through this any more!"

I envied those mothers who, I thought, were not housebound. Ones who could go fitting, I thought, without reading extra ration for the sitter or writing detailed lists of doctors' telephone numbers and probable locations of little Eddie's favorite plush doggie.

But, I was mistaken. Many women reach the place where they need not worry about these things any more, but they remain housebound all the same.

I called three friends one morning last week. None of them could meet in town for lunch. All had the same problem—no car. One daughter had a car at the swimming pool; a son had his mother's car at summer school. Another son, a college senior, not only had spoken for his mother's car, but called loudly to her while we were talking to say he was in a hurry and why didn't she get off the telephone and come fix his breakfast.

I don't know if these women have spent their lives forcing compulsory happiness on their children or not. I do know that many of us spend our time and energy saying, in effect, "You kids are going to be happy if it kills me."

So many times I have been startled by a successful man telling stories of his youth. He will lean back in his chair, and with a smile and a shake of his head, remember and talk about how hard he worked.

He may mention the two miles he walked to a country school or talk about how part-time jobs at soda fountains or pool halls, plus cooking in his room, enabled him to work his way through college. "Those were rough times," he will say expansively, "and my boy won't have to go through them."

The thing that startles me? That few of them seem to realize how important to their own lives is this pride, this feeling of, "I did it, most of it, by myself."

THE WELL CHILD

More to Infant Care Than Feeding, Changing

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

The transition of a child from a wholly dependent baby to an independent, self-reliant person is hard for many mothers to accept even though they know that this is the ultimate goal desired. A baby in his first months of life needs someone to care for him but he doesn't associate that care with any one person. He must, however, in the next few months become deeply attached to his mother if he is ever to become a loving and lovable person.

The care an infant gets must be more than regular feedings and a change of diapers. It must include warm cuddling and sweet talk. Even though your baby doesn't understand the words, the music of your voice will get your message of love across to him. Even though you can't be with him every moment he is awake in his first two years, you should try to remain where he can see you or hear your voice as much of the time as possible.

If you must leave him, try always to do so when he is awake; leave him with someone he knows and who loves babies, and tell him you will be back. Give him a reassuring smile and he will sense that all is well.

When he has learned to walk discard the playpen. Encourage him to explore his surroundings, taking care first to remove anything that might hurt him and any treasured items he might break. This is an important step in teaching him self-reliance. Even though he may seem to dart out of sight in the twinkling of an eye at this stage, he won't go so far that he can't find you within a few seconds if he needs to.

Although toddlers do not, properly speaking, play together, being with others of their own age is a broadening experience. At this stage, however, their ability to adjust to strange adults is more important than their ability to get along with other children.

By the time your child reaches school age, how well you have prepared him to stand on his own feet will be put to the test.

It's the Law

QUESTION: Can a "silent" partner in an informal partnership be held liable for debts incurred by the other partner without his knowledge?

FACTS: Sam and Fred were old friends. Sam, who had experience in the clothing business, wanted to open a store of his own but did not have the capital. Fred agreed to help Sam open the store by putting up an equal amount of money with Sam. Sam was to operate the business and Fred was to receive one-fourth of the profits.

After the store had been in operation for some time, Fred learned that Sam was having a difficult time and had gotten deeply into debt. Fred had previously paid little attention to Sam's operation of the store and did not learn of his difficulties until creditors started to press Fred for payment of the bills Sam had incurred. Sam, hopelessly in debt, finally closed the store.

Fred refused to pay the bills Sam had incurred, saying that he had no part in the operation of the business but had only put up a part of the money which had already been lost.

Can Fred be held responsible for the debts Sam incurred?

ANSWER: The answer is yes! Sam and Fred, by their informal agreement, became partners even though Fred had no part in the actual operation of the store. All partners are liable for everything chargeable to the partnership and therefore Fred was liable for the bill incurred.

Though a written limited partnership agreement, properly drawn, executed and filed, however, Fred could have limited his liability to the amount of money he originally invested in the partnership. (Public Information Committee—The Missouri Bar.)

Jim: "The Italian blue team has won the World's Championship for the 11th time in 12 years and, as usual, the American team has come in second."

Oswald: "Correction. This year it was the United States team. The Canadian team was third. In other years it has been a North American in second place, but every fourth year each country has a team. There were 35 teams this year."

Jim: "Look at the bidding on Board 1 with Walter Avarrelli of Italy sitting West. His spade bid stole the suit from our team. Then he opened a spade against our two heart contract and the defense wound up with two spade ruffs plus four tricks with aces and kings to set the contract on a trick."

Oswald: "This hand illustrates why Italy wins every year. They have very different theories at the low levels and, while our teams all learn the three special systems used by the three pairs that make up the Blue team, we try to counter them with the same methods that we use against other American players."

Jim: "This hand sure shows that. No American player would bid a spade with that West hand."

Oswald: "Exactly. Furthermore, expert American bidding style is of such nature that North's pass over one spade is automatic. He has a minimum opening bid."

Jim: "How would you handle this if you were captain of the team?"

Oswald: "The team would use the double of one spade in that spot to show four good spades as part of the opening bid. Partner would be expected to leave it in with spades and to take it out without spades. This time the double would have been left in and Italy would have had nowhere to go but down."

QUICK QUIZ

Q—What are waterspouts?

A—Tornadoes which occur over sea. There are two types: the tornado waterspout and the fair weather waterspout.

Q—How much of the sun's energy does the earth receive?

A—Only about one part in two billion.

Q—What is the origin of the word radar?

A—The name is taken from the phrase Radio Detection and Ranging.

GOOD FARMING with Lloyd Lewellen

Pettis County
Farm Management Agent

Erwin Rumpf, Herb Gerken, Joe Blackburn and your farm management agent went to Mexico, Mo., last Wednesday to tour six farms which were set up to irrigate corn with gated pipe. They were flooding every other 30-inch row for a quarter of a mile on 1/2 per cent to 2 per cent slope. The average investment per acre irrigated was $100 for lake, pump, motor and gated pipe. Plant population ranged from 20,000 to 30,000 and the fertilization program was usually 300-100-200 pounds per acre. Yields were 150 bushels per acre or higher. It looked like some would reach 200 bushels this year. These farmers were not afraid to plant corn thick and use a high rate of fertilizer.

Twenty cattle feeders will be attending the feedlot tour near Mexico Aug. 7. The tour starts at 10:30 a.m. Turn east off Highway 54 at Kingdom City junction on access road that is south and parallel to Interstate 70. Don't be late.

Topdress in August

From now until Labor Day is an excellent time to fertilize pastures. Livestock owners who topdress grass during this period can expect quick returns. Normally, fall growth can be doubled or tripled by treatment. This added growth means extra pasture during late fall and early winter, when pasture is valuable simply because it saves hay.

There are several reasons for this good response to August topdressing treatments. Missouri weather, the nature of the grass itself, and fertility are all involved. All contribute to make this period a good one for pasture improvement. It takes as much or more fertility to grow grass as corn. Pastures which have been grazed all season, have had about the same amount of fertility removed, as a corn crop growing on the same land would require. If hay has been harvested the removal is even greater. Thus, pastures at this time of the year are low in available fertility. Just like corn — grass won't make good yields until the fertility is applied.

August is a good time to apply this needed fertility because it fits Missouri weather patterns and the nature, or growth habits of our cool season grasses. The arrival of moisture usually brings lower temperatures. When this break in the weather occurs, cool season grasses which have been dormant during the summer months resume growth. This growth is stimulated by the fertilizer and production may be doubled or tripled — just as in the case of fertilized corn.

In other words, August is a good month to topdress because of the situation. It puts fertility needs, the weather, and the growth habits of the grass, all together into a timely operation. It has advantages livestock owners may want to consider.

The amount of treatment required will vary somewhat from one field to another. A fertilizer, or fertilizer materials, which will supply nitrogen, phosphate, and potash will be required in all cases except pure stands of legumes, where nitrogen will not be needed. Limestone may or may not be necessary, depending on whether lime has been used in the past. Whether grass is grown alone, or in combination with a legume, and the use made of the growth produced, will also affect the treatment needed.

Prices of Farmland

The U.S. Department of Agriculture reported recently that the dollar value of farmland in the United States has gone up 6 per cent during the past year. Farmland values in Missouri have gone up 8 per cent during this same period of time. In the period last Nov. 1 to March 1 this year, land valued in Missouri increased faster than in any other state.

In fact, land values in Missouri went up at about twice the rate as did other states in the Corn Belt. Since 1957, Missouri land values have increased much more rapidly than have the values in Illinois, Iowa, Indiana, Kansas or Nebraska. On the other hand, land values in both Oklahoma and Arkansas have risen faster than in Missouri.

Some of the reasons for this more rapid recent increase in land values in Missouri may be that Missouri was a late starter in the land boom compared to other states in the Corn Belt. Some indication of this may be the large number of farmers moving to Missouri from Illinois and Iowa, particularly in the 50's, because of relatively cheaper land in Missouri.

Another reason may be that as Missouri farmers apply new technology in the production of their crops, they have increased their yields and income faster than many other states.

A third reason advanced is that Missouri, a state with a lot of small farms which are inadequate to make a satisfactory living today, has been forced to consolidate farms in order to have one large enough. This consolidating of small farms has caused land values to be bid up.

Whatever the reasons may be, it is a fact that land values have been rising rapidly in the United States, and in recent years they have risen more rapidly in Missouri. It is interesting to observe who is buying farmland. More than 50 per cent of the buyers of farmland are farmers who already own some farmland. Another 13 per cent of the buyers are tenants who are making their first purchase of land. And, about 35 per cent of the buyers are non-farmers. So, you can see that about 35 per cent of the buyers are non-farmers. So, you can see that about two out of three farm buyers are currently farming; and about one out of three are non-farm people.

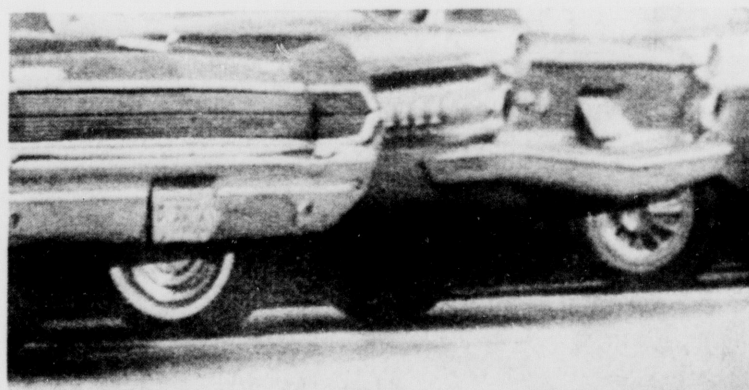

Who is selling farmland? About 17 per cent of the sales of farmland are made to settle estates. Another 15 per cent of such sales are made by retired farmers, and about 40 per cent by active farmers. The remaining sales, generally 25 to 30 per cent, are made by non-farm owners. This would indicate that about four out of ten sales are made by farmers who have not retired but are discontinuing farming. Six out of 10 sales are from retired farmers or from the estates of farmers who have passed away and non-farm owners.

Corn Smut

Farmers have been seeing a great deal of common smut in corn fields and have been inquiring about the problem.

Common smut is perhaps one of the most easily identified fungus diseases of corn because of the gall-like structures that grow out of the ears, tassels, leaves or stalks. Losses from common smut in the Midwest are highly variable, ranging from a trace up to six per cent or more in localized areas, and may even approach 100 per cent in some individual fields of sweet corn. Usually, however, the losses in grain yield do not exceed more than two per cent on the average.

Smut is often prevalent on vigorous plants grown in soil that is especially high in organic matter and nitrogen. This is particularly true if applications of barnyard manure or any other high nitrogen bearing fertilizers have been used. Injuries due to hail, insects, or spraying equipment may also increase the amount of smut. There is also some evidence

Souvenirs of Viet War Sought

By JOHN LENGEL

DONG HA, Vietnam (AP) —

Sgt. Randy Mullen had the SKS-model rifle, made in Novosibirsk, Russia, in his hands, fingering the stock, and tentatively working the bolt back and forth with satisfying metallic clicks and snaps.

The Marine had filled out all the necessary papers to take the SKS home to Battle Creek, Mich., as a souvenir.

"Oh, I just wanted it," said Mullen. "Maybe I'll give it to my brother."

The rifle, and thousands of other pieces of enemy equipment picked up on the battlefield, make up a big memorabilia traffic, souvenirs of a man's adventure or boredom in Vietnam.

Marine Sgt. Dan Hannes, 22, Bennett, Iowa, carries on patrol a North Vietnamese soldier's enlistment contract he found on the battlefield of Lai An, five miles below the demilitarized zone.

MFA Convention Set For Aug. 12

The annual convention of the Midcontinent and Missouri Farmer's Association will be held in Columbia on the Stephens College campus Aug. 12, with approximately 6,000 guests and delegates expected.

Heading the list of guest speakers will be Sen. Stuart Symington and B. J. (Barney) Maluskus, general manager of Farmers Union Grain Terminal Association, St. Paul, Minn.

The convention will elect officers and directors and establish general policy for the coming year. The term of Lawrence Kullman, Warrensburg, fourth district director, will expire.

No Comment From Navy On Scorpion Rumor

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy declines to confirm or deny a report that top-secret listening devices recorded the sound of the ocean crushing the nuclear submarine Scorpion about May 21.

The Pentagon issued a "no comment" Sunday to the report published in Newsweek magazine. Pentagon sources confirmed, however, that the Navy ordered a check of tapes after the Scorpion failed to return on schedule from a cruise, but declined to discuss any phase of its analysis.

The Navy has several devices for monitoring underwater traffic, using them mainly to keep track of Soviet submarines.

The Navy has extended official condolences to the families of the Scorpion's 99 crewmen.

The search for the vessel is now centered in a "highly suspect" area about 450 miles southwest of the Azores where ocean depths run to 12,000 feet.

At this time of the year you should be enjoying the fruits of your gardening endeavors. Sure, it takes a little sweat from the brow and a sore muscle or two to plant the garden. But the rewards are in the eating.

While tomatoes were late this year, and the first ones somewhat rough, you should be enjoying beautiful and delicious garden tomatoes. And do they really pep up a meal!

And how about sweet corn! It probably appears on your table every day. And what eating! And one could go on and on. What about beans! Cucumbers! Peppers! Summer squash! The latter is really a delicacy if you harvest when the fruits are about an inch in diameter and just 5 to 6 inches long. Try slicing in half and broiling with a little butter or oleo. Delicious!

Other tasty morsels from the garden now might include okra, cantaloupe, eggplant, and lima beans. You just can't beat that kind of eating.

You still have time to plant a few garden vegetables. Bush green beans will still have a chance to mature a crop if planted now. And remember, fall planted beans can be the most productive, tender and flavorful beans you can grow. In the greens category you can still plant spinach, mustard, kale, and leaf lettuce. You still have a chance with turnips if you get them planted right away and have a favorable break with the weather to get them off to a good start.

Beets should do well planted now. It may be a little late for carrots, but radishes can be planted every week to late August for successive crops.

A few bug problems are likely to crop up in your garden in the coming weeks. They particularly like vine crops. Squash can be hit by the squash vine borer and the squash bug. The material Sevin is effective on both insects.

Sevin can also be used on beans for the Mexican bean beetle, the bean leaf beetles and the 11-spotted cucumber beetle. The Mexican bean beetle larva are the yellow, fuzzy-like creatures that inhabit the undersides of the bean leaves and give a net-like appearance to the leaves.

Sevin can also be used on cucumbers and cantaloupes for cucumber beetles — both the 11-spotted and striped types — but you must use caution or you can get plant injury. Do not use Sevin during hot, muggy weather. Do not use repeat sprays of Sevin on cucumbers or cantaloupes. This avoids a build-up of material that can cause injury during hot muggy weather. Don't over-dose with Sevin.

For all other insect problems in the garden the combination of methoxychlor and malathion should do a good job. Be sure to read the label for time interval between last spray and harvest and precautions to use in handling.

Berkshire Swine Exceed Standard

LAMONTE — Donald Williams, a breeder of purebred Berkshire swine, has had two boars qualified by the University of Missouri Swine Testing Station at Columbia. To pass station standards and qualify, the boars must have gained 100 pounds on 300 pounds of feed or less; have an average daily gain of 1.7 pounds or more; have an adjusted backfat of 1.25 inches or less or 1.30 inches of backfat or less if daily gain was over 2 pounds per day and index 125 or more.

One of the Williams' boars had the following record: average daily gain, 1.90; feed efficiency, 293; adjusted backfat probe, 1.08 inches; and index, 137.3. This is an outstanding record and exceeds that necessary to qualify, stated R. K. Leavitt, station supervisor.

Airliner Carries Small Plane's Wreckage Down

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — A jet-prop airplane, with the wreckage of a light plane and the bodies of its three young passengers embedded in its side, landed safely Sunday before most of the 10 passengers aboard knew what happened.

Capt. Ted Baum, 43, Skokie, Ill., brought the twin-engine plane in with one engine dead and his copilot badly injured in the cockpit.

"I thought that something was wrong, but not a collision," said Mrs. Nancy Steffens, 44, of Two Rivers. "I was more nervous after I got on the ground and realized it had been a collision."

"We didn't know what hit us. I think only the stewardess knew," said Wilma Ross, 17, of Saginaw, Mich., "and she just told us to stay seated with our seat belts on. The pilot came down with what seemed like a normal landing."

Officials said the single-engine Cessna 150 rammed North Central Airlines Flight 261, a Convair 580, over southern Wisconsin. The light plane hit just behind the copilot's seat, also damaging the propeller on the plane's right engine.

The copilot, first officer John Mazur, 30, of Wheaton, Ill., suffered multiple fractures of his right leg and head injuries. He was reported in serious condition in a Milwaukee hospital. He was the only person on the air-liner injured.

The victim's bodies were removed after the plane landed. They were identified as Rick L. Stenberg, 19, of Elk Grove Village, Ill., the pilot; Virginia

Johnson, 18, Mt. Prospect, Ill., and her brother, Richard, 12. "That pilot did a fantastic landing job," a federal official said. Otherwise there was no comment as a team of about 35 National Transportation Safety Board investigators led by board examiner Thomas Saunders arrived from Washington to probe the cause of the crash.

Milwaukee police said the pilots told authorities they were flying 170 miles per hour at 3,500 feet, preparing to land at Milwaukee, when the private plane appeared suddenly on their right, then veered into the liner. The flight originated in Chicago and was headed to Manitowoc, with a stop at Milwaukee.

There was no panic in the big plane after the collision.

"I just felt a heavy thud and heard a bang," said Pam Pavlovich, who was returning to her Manitowoc home after a vacation. "Then someone yelled 'My God, take it easy,' and everyone got very quiet."

"Everyone acted very calmly," Miss Ross said. "Nobody panicked or anything. One woman just cried."

Opals are found in black, brown and white, when cut and polished, they reflect many colors.

Ace of Tiger Staff Wins His 22nd Game Sunday

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Denny McLain, whose toes let the Detroit Tigers down a year ago, is making up for it with his arm this summer.

The ace of the Tiger staff won his 22nd game Sunday, beating Minnesota 2-1 and staying on schedule for his date with the record book.

McLain, 22-3, figures to get 13 or 14 more starts and needs eight victories to become the first 30-game winner since Dizzy Dean did it in 1934. His pace has kept Detroit on top of the American League and could pay off in the club's first pennant in 23 years.

It looked like the Tigers would end that long dry spell last year until McLain's foot fell asleep and he dislocated some toes with two weeks left in the season. The injury also dislocated the Tiger pennant dream and Boston walked off with the flag.

Now McLain, his foot awake and his arm alive, has the Tigers out in front again.

Elsewhere Sunday, Chicago battered Washington 7-2, Baltimore dumped New York 5-3, Boston beat California 5-1 in the completion of a suspended game and then the Angels walloped the Red Sox 12-6, and Oakland split with Cleveland, winning the first game 5-0 and dropping the nightcap 7-4.

In the National League, Cincinnati topped Atlanta 6-4 in 12 innings, Chicago edged St. Louis 6-5 in 13, Philadelphia nipped Houston 3-2, San Francisco blanked Pittsburgh 2-0 and New York split a doubleheader with Los Angeles, winning 8-4 and then losing 2-0.

McLain scattered five hits and had the Twins shut out until the eighth when an error by Al Kaline, playing first base, set up an unearned run.

Kaline's sacrifice fly had driven in Dick McAuliffe, who tripled, in the top half of the eighth against loser Jim Kaat. A triple by Mickey Stanley and Bill Freehan's single drove in the Tigers' first run in the fourth.

The victory kept Detroit six games up on Baltimore. The Orioles won a wild one at New York with the winning run scoring on a disputed play at home plate.

Mark Belanger, who had opened the seventh inning with a single and worked his way to third on an error and a messed up pickoff play, scored the run on Dave Johnson's bouncer to short.

The Yankees argued on the call and while they did, Frank Robinson tried to slide in with another run. But the umpires had called time and the Orioles argued on that decision. Manager Ralph Houk of New York and Earl Weaver of Baltimore were both jawing with the umpires at the same time.

Tommy Davis, who drove in four runs Saturday, knocked three more home Sunday helping the White Sox beat Washington. Davis tagged his sixth home run and a two-run double as Jack Fisher won his sixth game. Paul Casanova homered for the Senators.

Ken Harrelson crashed a grand slam home run in the ninth inning, giving the Red Sox the victory over California in the completion of a game suspended June 13.

Then the Angels roared back in the nightcap with Rick Reichardt's three-run homer and five hits by Vic Davalillo including a tie-breaking double in the eighth inning leading the attack.

Tommy Harper delivered a two-run pinch double in a five-run fourth inning that carried Cleveland past Oakland in the second game of a doubleheader.

The A's took the opener on a four-run seventh inning rally keyed by doubles by Danny Cater and John Donaldson. Lew Krausse and Chuck Dobson combined to pitch the five-hit-

Owner Asks Jeannette's Resignation

BALTIMORE (AP) — It was a matter of pride for Buddy Jeannette. He was fired from another basketball job, and didn't mind saying so.

For awhile Sunday, there was a mild battle of semantics — which unlike the zone defense, has not been outlawed by the National Basketball Association.

"I've asked Buddy Jeannette for his resignation," said owner Abe Pollin of the Baltimore Bullets from his Bethesda, Md., home.

"I've been fired," said Jeannette, the colorful 50-year-old general manager of the Bullets. "This keeps my string intact. I've never quit a job in my life."

"Anyway, how can I honestly say I'm resigning?" Jeannette asked rhetorically. "Resigning to do what? I've no job to go to."

Jeannette sold his interest in a Baltimore liquor store when he rejoined the Bullets for a second hitch as coach for the 1964-65 season.

He became general manager the following year, and served as interim coach for 17 games early in the 1966-67 season — after Mike Farmer was fired, and before Gene Shue was hired.

Spoil Music Appreciation Day By Taking Cardinals

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

The new statue of Stan Musial outside St. Louis' Busch Stadium stands 10 feet tall, or about shoulder high to Leo Durocher and the Chicago Cubs.

Durocher's sky-high Cubs spoiled a Musical Appreciation day at St. Louis Sunday by bringing down the Cardinals 6-5 in a 13-inning struggle.

The Cubs have won six in a row, including three against the runaway National League leaders, and have shot from ninth place, on July 12, to second with a run of 18 victories in their last 23 games.

Musial, the NL's seven-time batting king before he moved into the Cardinals' front office, donned his old uniform and joined former 1941 teammates during the pre-game ceremonies. The bronze statue, created by Carl Mose of Washington, D.C., was unveiled after the game at one of the main entrances to the stadium.

In between, a capacity crowd of 47,440 saw the Cubs battle St. Louis ace Bob Gibson to a standoff for 12 innings before beating reliever Joe Hoerner on a run-scoring pinch single by Leo Elia in the 13th.

Elsewhere, Los Angeles rookie Mike Kekich beat New York 2-0 with a one-hitter after the Mets won the doubleheader opener 8-4; Cincinnati downed Atlanta 6-4 in 12 innings; San Francisco topped Pittsburgh 2-0 and Philadelphia nipped Houston 3-2.

In the American League, Detroit took Minnesota 2-1, Baltimore trimmed New York 5-3; Cleveland drubbed Oakland 7-4 after bowing to the Athletics 5-0; Boston defeated California 5-1 in the completion of an earlier suspended game, then lost to the Angels 12-6 and Chicago whipped Washington 7-2.

Gibson, gunning for his 13th straight triumph, settled for a no-decision after being tagged for five runs — two more than he'd allowed in any previous start since April 20.

The Cards' 15-game winner pitched out of a couple of early bases-loaded jams, was tagged for a seventh inning homer by Billy Williams that tied the game 3-3 and lost a 4-3 lead in the ninth when Al Spangler hit his first pitch for a homer — the first of the year for the Chicago outfielder.

Don Kessinger sent the Cubs ahead 5-4 with a run-scoring single in the top of the 12th but the Cards quickly retied it when Johnny Edwards, batting for Gibson, doubled and Lou Brock stroked an RBI single.

The Cubs finally pushed over the winning run in the 13th on Randy Hundley's single, a sacrifice and a two-out single to center by Elia, who went to the plate with one hit in 14 at-bats. It was the Cub utility man's first RBI of the season.

Kekich, who had lost five straight after an April 16th victory over Philadelphia, limited the Mets to two walks until the seventh, when Ron Swoboda lined a two-out single to right. The 23-year-old southpaw struck out 11 and got the only run he needed when Willie Davis singled in the third inning, stole second and scored on Ron Fairly's double.

Bud Harrelson poked four hits, Cleon Jones and Tommie Agee homered and Al Eisei's tie-breaking single keyed a two-run seventh inning rally as the Mets won the opener behind a 14-hit attack.

Johnny Bench snapped a 4-4 tie with a run-scoring single in the 12th and tallied an insurance run on Tony Perez' triple, leading the Reds past Atlanta into third place. The Braves had tied the game in the ninth on a two-run single by Joe Torre.

Bob Bolin pitched a five-hitter, struck out 10 and drove in the Giants' first run with a fifth inning single. Dave Marshall's run-scoring singled in the eighth sealed Bolin's fifth victory in eight decisions and saddled Pittsburgh's Jim Bunning with a 4-12 season mark.

Pitcher Rick Wise drilled his second double of the game with two out in the ninth and scored on Tony Taylor's single, carrying the Phils past Houston. Wise, who also doubled and scored in the fifth, checked the Astros on seven hits for his seventh victory against eight setbacks.

Model Airplane Buffs Complete

OLATHE, Kan. (AP) — Hundreds of model airplane enthusiasts from throughout the world started competition today in the 37th annual National Model Airplane championships.

The Navy has suspended most of its aircraft operations at the Olathe Naval Air Station and turned a large hangar over to the modelers for storage and repairs during the six-day meet.

A WINNER RETIRES
DENVER (AP) — Al Oviatt, with the best winning basketball record among Denver high school coaches, has retired from coaching at 55 to devote his time to teaching. In 15 seasons his Manual High teams won six city championships and tied for two others as well as winning two state titles.

Kathy Whitworth Tells of Winning

DANBURY, Conn. (AP) — "I don't care how long the putt was. It went in." That's how jubilant Kathy Whitworth felt about her winning stroke on the first sudden-death playoff hole at the windup of the $15,000 Women's Open Golf Tournament at Ridgewood Country Club.

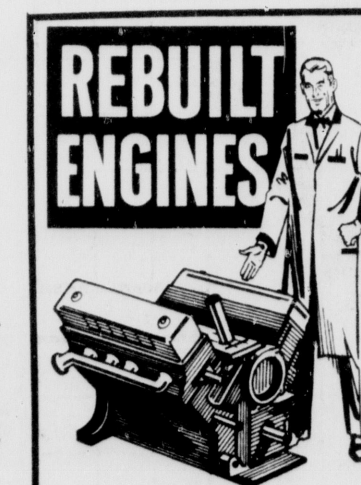

Kathy and tiny Marlene Bauer Hage had tied at one-under-par 215 when regulation play ended at 54 holes.

Then Kathy hit a 240-yard drive and 140-yard 7-iron to within good putting range on the extra hole. After Mrs. Hage missed a 20-foot putt for a par, Miss Whitworth holed out her birdie putt which ranged somewhere between 10 and 15 feet.

First prize was worth $2,250 and Mrs. Hage won $1,750.

Just as important, however was the 35-footer she had made on the 17th green Sunday which pulled her into a tie with the comeback-minded Mrs. Hage — who began winning pro tournaments in 1952 but hasn't captured a tour title since 1965.

Kathy, winner of four tournaments this year, increased her career total to 40 tournament victories as a professional.

Colts May Yet Reap Dividend

WESTMINSTER, Md. (AP) — The Baltimore Colts may yet reap belated dividends from their heartbreaking 1967 National Football League season.

A lot of young Colts grew up fast last year, performing well after being forced into extensive action sooner than expected. Injuries opened the way for some, but they survived on talent.

Not even a disastrous finish — when the Colts lost the Coastal Division title in the final game after going undefeated in their first 13 — could diminish the enthusiasm of Coach Don Shula for his youngsters.

"If we're going to improve," Shula said at Baltimore's Western Maryland College training camp, "it will be because of experience gained by our younger players last season."

Shula, a positive thinker with a fine 50-17-3 record in five years as head coach, again has a potential contender in what most observers regard as the toughest NFL division. Any team with John Unitas as quarterback has to be a title threat.

Unitas will start his 13th season at 35. But he is coming off an injury-free year in which he set a personal high of 58.5 per cent completions and threw 20 touchdown passes. His understudy, Jim Ward, threw only 16 passes as a rookie in 1967 — emphasizing the need for a healthy Unitas.

The Colts, who last season gained two-thirds of their yardage in the air, have such receivers as flanker Willie Richardson, split end Ray Perkins and tight end John Mackey, with veterans Jimmy Orr and Alex Hawkins in reserve. Even half-back Tom Matte, who led Baltimore ground gainers with 636 yards last season, added 496 yards on receptions.

Baltimore, long in need of a breakaway runner, obtained Timmy Brown from the Philadelphia Eagles in an off-season trade. But Brown quit to become an actor. That again leaves the running to Matte and fullbacks Tony Lorick and Jerry Hill, with a possible late-season assist from Preston Pearson.

Pearson played only basketball at Illinois and was used on defense as a rookie in 1967, but he is considered a sleeper as a running back. Right now, he has a lot to learn.

Center Dick Szymanski, in his 13th season, anchors the offensive line which includes Bob Vogel and Sam Ball at tackle, and Dan Sullivan and Glenn Ressler at guard.

The defense, which allowed the fewest touchdowns in the NFL last year, has more age. Of the starters, end Orrell Braase and linebacker Don Shinnick are starting their 12th seasons, corner back Lenny Lyles his 11th, tackle Billy Ray Smith his 10th, and corner back Bob Boyd is beginning No. nine.

Safety Jerry Logan and tackle Fred Miller are comparative youngsters with five years experience.

But the infusion of new talent has started, exemplified by safety Rick Volk, a starter last year, and huge Bubba Smith, shifted from tackle to end after being sidelined by a knee injury most of his rookie season.

Newcomer Henry Carr, obtained from the New York Giants, may be used to return kicks while trying to break into the defensive backfield.

Pasarell Rallies To Win Set

SOUTH ORANGE, N.J. (AP) — Chuck Pasarell, who almost played his way off the Davis Cup team earlier in the year, has played himself back on by winning his first five set matches in four years.

Pasarell rallied to defeat top-seeded Clark Graebner of New York 3-6, 4-6, 6-2, 6-3, 6-4 Sunday to take the Eastern Grass Court Tennis title.

Two hours later, Davis Cup captain Don Dell, who watched the match, said Pasarell would be on the team that takes on Spain in Cleveland Oct. 15-16.

The muscular Puerto Rican, ranked No. 1 in the United States, was not on the team that beat Ecuador in the American Zone finals.

But Dell said that the Graebner match "kind of helped put him over the top."

Pasarell replaces Stan Smith, a doubles specialist on the team, which also includes Graebner, Arthur Ashe, an Army lieutenant stationed at West Point, and Bob Lutz of Los Angeles.

Nicklaus Locks Up Open Title

CHICAGO (AP) — An hour after Jack Nicklaus handily locked up the Western Open Golf Championship Sunday he still was hanging around the press room. He was laughing, patting scribes on the back and talking about the technicalities of his game.

The frustration of failing to win a tournament in 9½ months was over and the Golden Bear, like a kid with new toys, made the most of it.

He took his second consecutive Western title and the $26,000 payoff with ridiculous ease. He was leading by four strokes entering the last round and won by three with a closing 71 and a 273 total, 11 under Olympia Fields' murdered par.

Only one player who was anywhere near the pace made a determined charge at Nicklaus, Miller Barber, 37, winner of the 1968 Nelson Classic, finished with birdies on three of the last five holes for a 66. It gave him second-place money of $15,600 with 276.

Much credit for adding some dash to the 65th Western Open must go to 22-year-old Bobby Stanton of Australia, winner of a mere $5,131 this year. Bobby was in contention from the start, failed to break down where others did, and closed with a 71.

He took a bogey 6 on the last hole when he strayed into the bleachers. Stanton totaled 277 and picked off his biggest purse of $9,750 for third place.

Julius Boros, the oldest PGA king at age 48, displayed unreal steadiness in a final 70 for 278 and fourth-place money of $6,500.

Own Private Drawer Cuts Their Squabbling

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—Our three boys are just 13 months apart in age and they could never keep a special gift. It would be broken, borrowed or lost by one of the others. I finally fixed a private drawer for each. No one, not even mother, is allowed to open anyone else's drawer. This system was started three years ago and, believe me, it works. I wish my own mother had done the same thing as each of us needs a place for our private and personal possessions, unquestioned and unseen except by its owner.—H. L. R.

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—We use quite a few soft drinks in cans. I wonder if some of the readers could give me some suggestions as to what could be made with these cans.—DONNA

DEAR POLLY—and Mrs. N. L. F.—The best way to display and protect a collection of moths and butterflies is to place them in a riker mount. This is a small display case consisting of a shallow, open cardboard box with a glass cover fitted over its open side. Cotton can be placed on the bottom to provide a suitable background and protect the specimens from damage. Be sure the collection is free from insect parasites before placing in the mount, which can be purchased from a hobby center or natural history museum. If the box is sealed there should be no fear of insect damage but moth balls could be placed in the corners.—KEN

DEAR POLLY—Insect collections are best mounted on slender insect pins which are pushed through the thorax from back to front (top to bottom). A regular insect box with a cork bottom is helpful as the pins can be stuck into the cork. Any cardboard box, such as a large square shoe box, could be used with a layer of corrugated board in the bottom. Be sure it has a tight-fitting lid. Moth balls stuck on pins or flakes wrapped in paper should prevent moth damage. Yours for a continuing Polly's column.—J. R. S.

DEAR POLLY—On shelves where sticky items like syrup, salad oil and so on are to be placed, I put several layers of waxed paper over the shelf paper. When cleaning day comes, I just peel off the top soiled layer and do not have to replace good shelf paper.—MARION

Lions, Bills Crack Heads At Buffalo Tonight

By MIKE RECHT
Associated Press Sports Writer

The American Football League, over its first year jitters, has shook up the National Football League thus far in this season's miniature Super Bowls, and now it is Buffalo's chance to increase the vibrations.

The Bills, who contributed an 0-2 record in last year's 3-12 AFL interleague exhibition debut, and the Detroit Lions of the NFL crack heads tonight in Buffalo's War Memorial Stadium.

AFL clubs already have won two games, and lost one, in the first week of this year's exhibitions after a split during the weekend.

San Diego of the AFL scored twice in the last two minutes for a 30-18 victory over San Francisco of the NFL, while AFL defending champion Oakland lost to Baltimore and Johnny Unitas 14-12 Saturday night. Houston owns the AFL's other interleague victory, beating Washington 9-3 last Thursday.

In other games Saturday, the Chicago Bears edged the Dallas Cowboys 30-24 in the all-NFL Hall of Fame game at Canton, Ohio, in the afternoon, and Kansas City spoiled expansion Cincinnati's debut 38-14 in an AFL game at Cincinnati at night.

The Bills, who dropped a 19-17 decision to Detroit last year, will start a veteran lineup, with only starting right end Paul Costa, offensive tackle Dick Hudson and split end Bobby Crockett sitting out. Jack Kemp will be at quarterback with Elbert Dubenion, Wray Carlton and Keith Lincoln completing the backfield.

However, the Lions, who were shocked by Denver before beating two AFL clubs last season, will be minus hospitalized starting quarterback Bill Munson. Veteran Karl Sweetan will replace him.

Detroit will have rookie kicker Jerry DePoyster from the College All-Star game, but quarterback Greg Landry and flanker Earl McCullough, who also starred for the All-Stars in the 34-17 loss to Green Bay Friday night, are not expected to see much action.

Quarterback John Hadl and back Brad Hubbard supplied the big action at San Diego with 1:45 remaining against the 49ers. Trailing 18-17, Hadl hit Hubbard on a 24-yard screen pass and a touchdown, and Chuck Allen added a 29-yard interception score with 51 seconds left.

San Diego had led 17-3 at the half, but a field goal and Ken Willard's two scoring plunges put the 49ers ahead.

Unitas put Baltimore ahead 14-3 at the half with a 47-yard pass to Willie Richardson to set up one score and a 53-yard drive for another before 51,154 spectators in Oakland. The Raiders never caught up, although Unitas sat out the last half.

"This game took on more importance than the usual exhibition," admitted Baltimore coach Don Shula. "We knew the Raiders wanted to prove something after the Super Bowl." Oakland lost to Green Bay in the Super Bowl last January.

Chicago rookie Willie Derion returned a punt 62 yards in the final quarter for the Bears' victory, but it wasn't decided until the Bears stopped Dallas on a fourth down situation 18 yards from the goal line in the last minute.

Another Chicago rookie, Cecil Turner, and Lance Rentzel of Dallas each scored two touchdowns.

Kansas City ruined Paul Brown's return to coaching as Mike Garrett ran for two touchdowns and the Chiefs' defense stopped the Bengals with only two first downs until late in the game.

Western Open Champ

Western Open Champion Jack Nicklaus looks at trophy he won for the second consecutive year after shooting a final round 71 in the classic Sunday at Olympia Falls, Ill. His 11-under-par total put him three shots in front of Miller Barber and four ahead of Bob Stanton. (UPI)

Cubs Beat Cardinals But Not Bob Gibson

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The Chicago Cubs did more against Bob Gibson Sunday than the entire National League has done in the last two months. They did everything but beat him. They only managed to beat the St. Louis Cardinals 6-5.

Gibson went into the game with a stunning record behind him. He'd given up just three runs in 100-plus innings and never more than one in a game. He hadn't given up more than three runs in one game all year. He was going for his 12th victory in a row and his 13th complete game. And the Cubs, the hottest team in baseball, swept all that aside.

The Cardinals staked Gibson to a three-run lead in the third inning off Ferguson Jenkins.

Curt Flood opened the inning with a hit. An error and hits by Tim McCarver, Mike Shannon and Julian Javier produced the runs.

Then the Cubs hit back. They hit two runs in the fifth with Don Kessinger and Ron Santo driving in the runs. Then Billy Williams unloaded his 15th homer of the year in the seventh and tied the game.

Julian Javier united the game in the eighth with a single, but Al Spangler tied it again by hitting his first homer of the year off Gibson's first pitch of the ninth.

It was 93 degrees in St. Louis, which usually means it's 10 degrees hotter on Busch Memorial Stadium's playing field. But Gibson kept going.

The Cubs got another run off Gibson in the 11th, again on a Kessinger single, but it was the Cards' turn to tie the game in the bottom of the inning on a Lou Brock single.

But 11 innings was all Gibson could go and he was taken out for a pinchhitter in the 12th. Despite the heat, and the extra innings, catcher McCarver is amazed that some writers thought it just wasn't the same Gibson out there.

"It was hot out there," Tim pointed out. "It spoils you to see him (Gibson) pitch shutouts all the time. And some of those guys (on the Cubs) are getting paid $50,000 a year to hit him and they're bound to get their hits."

They did, but the ones that really counted were off loser Joe Hoerner (4-2). Randy Hundley started the 13th with an infield hit and scored on Lee Elia's single. That gave the victory to Chicago's Jack Lamabe (3-2), and thus the Cubs won their sixth straight and swept the St. Louis series.

Now the Cardinals have to come back tonight against the Cincinnati Reds. Nelson Briles (13-7) goes against Tony Cloninger (13-6).

Meet Builds Up Confidence For Olympics

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Only five world records and 10 meet marks fell in the 18th AAU Outdoor Swimming Championships, but don't worry about the United States in the Olympics this fall in Mexico City.

"This was primarily a meet for the young kids to build up their confidence for the Olympic Trials," said Yale's Don Schollander, a four-time gold medalist at the 1964 Olympics.

"The world records will come at the Olympic Trials," he predicted Sunday. "Most of the top swimmers already had qualified for the trials."

Schollander, a graybeard of 22, was himself dethroned in both the 100 and 200-meter freestyle events he has ruled for five years. He was beaten by Mark Spitz, his 18-year-old Santa Clara Club teammate.

Spitz, a triple winner and leading men's scorer in the meet, was himself upset in the 200 butterfly Saturday by 23-year-old Mark Robie, an Olympic silver medalist who competed at Michigan.

"I needed a good meet going into the trials," Robie said.

UCLA's Mike Burton missed his bid for a world 1,500-meter freestyle record Sunday night. So did 15-year-old Debbie Meyer in the women's but she had a consolation prize—a world 800-meter record of 9:17.8 en route to her meet mark of 17:38.5.

Burton barely held off 15-year-old John Kinsella of Hinsdale, Ill., 16:29.4 against 16:29.6. Both broke Burton's meet and American citizen's mark of 16:34.1 but missed the pending world mark of 16:28.1 set July 7 by Mexico's Guillermo Echevar-ances also served as trials for the U.S. Olympic team.

Miss Cheng, a native of Taiwan, represented that country in the 1964 Olympics in Tokyo and will not be eligible to represent the United States this year, although she was the only one to exceed the minimum standard of 4,600 points in this meet.

Pat Winslow of the Crown City Track Club, the defending champion and six-time winner, placed second with 4,481 points. She was in the 1964 Olympics and won the Pan American Games Pentathlon last summer in Winnipeg.

Barbara Emerson of Crown City had 4,327 for third.

Tied at 4,319 points were two newcomers, Jan Glotzer of the Phoenix, Ariz., Track Club, and Cathy Hamblin of Albuquerque, N.M. Jan was awarded fourth place because she excelled Cathy in three events. Cathy placed fifth.

The meet director, Dr. John Davis of Topeka, Kan., who is a member of the U.S. Olympic Committee, said he believed that Miss Winslow, Miss Emerson, Miss Glotzer and Miss Hamblin might be invited to future Olympic Trials even though they did not meet the minimum standard Sunday.

Ann Landers

Gram's Nite Life Causes Concern

Dear Ann Landers: My grandmother is 69 years of age. She has a good income but insists on working part-time to "keep up with things." Gram is peppy and fun and could wear out a person half her age. She has lived with us for two years (we need the $150 a month) and our children love her.

The problem is that Gram drinks. (She's been doing it for 40 years that I know of.) It wouldn't be so bad if she drank quietly at home but she goes to the neighborhood taverns four evenings a week. Occasionally some "nice young man" brings Gram home but usually she hires a taxi.

The drivers are getting to know her by her first name. I don't mean to give the impression they have to help her walk or anything. She never gets really loaded. She can put the key in the lock and get herself to bed.

My husband says Gram can either stop drinking or move elsewhere because she is giving our address a bad name. I think he is being too hard on the old darling. What do you say? — LOYAL TO GRAM darling" is pretty well pickled by this time so your husband can forget about a reform program.

Dear Loyal: The "old

Since Gram doesn't get into trouble and your husband's only complaint is that the cab drivers are getting to know your address, tell him the drivers don't care about addresses so long as their fares behave themselves and pay. I'd hate to see you toss out the old girl.

Dear Ann Landers: My parents had a terrible marriage. Dad was a quiet man who didn't have much ambition. Mom always held an executive position and made three times as much as Dad. Although she never threw it up to him he mentioned it often as "the cause of all our trouble."

I guess history repeats itself because I was married at 24 — to a man who was making less money than I. The marriage lasted exactly two years. I swore I'd never make that mistake again. Now I am 31 and in love with a man whose salary is exactly 50 per cent of mine. He wants me to marry him and quit work and have a family.

Am I wrong to want to maintain the high standard of living to which I have grown accustomed? I can do without him. Please advise. — SARA

Dear Sara: Since your principal interest in life seems to be to enjoy a high standard of living, tell the fellow no. It would be a dirty trick to marry him. And I hope you and your standard of living will be very happy.

WISE OLD BIRD knows the answer to instant navigation, but will it tell? Using a computer and a grant from the Office of Naval Research, a Bowling Green (Ohio) State University mathematics professor is endeavoring to discover how pigeons navigate in the air. The birds are observed in flight, both from the ground and at times by following them in helicopters. The recorded data is then processed in an IBM computer to plot performance averages as well as spot any deviations in the bird's flight pattern. Since a pigeon's uncanny navigational ability enables it to do in seconds what now takes minutes for an aircraft navigator, it is hoped the study will benefit future air travel.

Pollutants a Tool To Curb Pollution

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Dr. Wayne F. Echelberger Jr. and Dr. Mark W. Tenney of Notre Dame say they have found the waste product of coal and oil fires, trapped in smokestacks by air pollution control devices, can be used to eliminate up to 90 per cent of the typical pollutants in fresh water lakes. They said the ash has amazing absorption qualities and releases lime that further purifies water but that the treatment is not suitable for large lakes and the effect on fish is undetermined.

Train Derailed

NEWTOWN, Mo. (AP) — A heavy rain washed out a section of railroad track and caused derailment of a 43-car Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul & Pacific freight train near the Newtown station early Sunday.

About 15 cars piled up at the north side of the depot and knocked holes in the station, which was unoccupied at the time. No one was hurt.

Importation of the mongoose is prohibited because of its high reproductive rate. It could be a menace to chickens and other fowl.

Offers a Bonus

BEDFORD, Iowa (AP) — Fifty pairs of new shoes shared showroom space with new cars at a Bedford auto firm after a merchant jokingly offered some shoes from his store to bridge the price gap in negotiations for purchase of a new auto.

Revoke Conviction

KANSAS CITY (AP) — U.S. District Court has set aside a five-year conviction that was being served by Richard Walter Christenson, 35, of St. Louis because he supplied information that led to the conviction of 17 others on charges of counterfeiting and post office burglary.

ON MY RECORD, I SEEK, AND WILL BE GRATEFUL FOR, YOUR CONTINUING SUPPORT

E. L. "Red" Birdsong, Democratic Encumbent
Judge Pettis County Court, Eastern District

My background in brief:

- Resident of Pettis County for more than 40 years.
- My wife and I reared and educated our three sons and one daughter in Pettis County.
- Member of Salem and Smithton School Boards for 23 years.
- Member of Pettis County Heart Council for past 16 years.
- Member State County Court Judges Ass'n. and of the Legislative and Auditing Committees.
- Objective: Better County Government through an exchange of ideas.

- Helped to establish Pettis County Fire Department.
- Helped to establish Buena Vista Home for our older people, which has saved Pettis County taxpayers thousands of dollars, since it is nearly self-sustaining.
- I have worked for and voted to keep Pettis County on a current and cash basis in all of its affairs. Only 46 of 114 counties are in such a good fiscal condition.
- Treasurer of Central Missouri County Court Judges Association.
- Since my election as county judge, I have advocated, voted for, supported and worked for, the good county roads we enjoy today.
- Pettis County now ranks third of Missouri's 114 counties in all-weather roads—surpassed only by Jackson and St. Louis Counties, a decided improvement since my first term on the Pettis County Court.
- Member of Missouri Good Roads Association.
- In 1954, I voted to reduce the General Revenue Tax Levy from 50¢ to 47¢ — the tax rate today — a savings of $3.00 per $100 assessed valuation each year for fourteen years.

IF NOMINATED AND ELECTED, I promise to continue to serve all citizens of Pettis County to the best of my ability and to continue to administer county affairs fairly and economically.

Her Special Hobby Is Finding New Friends

By JOY STILLEY
NEW YORK (AP) — Some people collect old shoe buttons, Chinese proverbs, barbed wire or picture post cards.

My friend Toby collects friends.

She needs no formal introduction to add a new specimen to her vast assemblage. She accumulates them everywhere—in the subway, at the adjacent restaurant table, even while waiting for the light to change.

A stranger who stops to ask directions has, within the next five minutes, become a firm friend. Not only have the two exchanged life histories but they have formulated plans for having lunch together within the next week.

This acquisitive habit of hers necessarily slows down our progress on joint outings. At the store counter we can't simply pick and pay—she has to take time to talk to any likely prospect in the vicinity.

Not long ago I accompanied my friendly friend on our weekly grocery-shopping expedition. At the produce department she spotted another woman and the two rushed together with excited exclamations of greeting. As I hovered nearby filling my basket with peaches and potatoes, carrots and cucumbers, I caught snatches of their conversation:

"And your son," inquired Toby, "is he still troubled with allergy?"

"Oh, the shots are helping," replied the other. "What college did your daughter finally decide to attend?"

Plainly, this was no casual acquaintance. I wasn't sure whether they'd grown up together or had merely lived in the same neighborhood for years, but obviously they were well versed in the details of one another's lives. I ambled slowly along the aisles, allowing them plenty of time to catch up on recent happenings before I finally indicated my impatience to get out of the store.

Reluctantly the two parted, with fervent hopes of getting together again soon.

"Well," I pointed out, a bit miffed, "you really might have introduced me to such an old friend."

"I'm so sorry," Toby apologized, "but I don't even know her name. She's a woman I got to talking to a few weeks ago while we were both waiting at the meat counter."

Teacher is Hired To Count Cracks

WYOMING, Mich. (AP) — The Grand Rapids suburb of Wyoming has an honest-to-goodness sidewalk superintendent on the payroll.

The western Michigan town hired Larry Knickerbocker, a school teacher, to inspect most of the several hundred miles of sidewalks for defects this summer.

Distant Relatives

SEABROOK, N.H. (AP) — Selectmen Emroy N. Eaton and James S. Eaton recently named Leslie A. Eaton to fill out an unexpired term on the three-man Board of Selectmen for this town of 2,500. The Eatons say that if they are related it is distantly.

Dear Ann Landers: I started to write to this boy in the service. He saw my picture in a high school paper. Jerry was a real brain and I knew it from his first letter. I had to sit with a dictionary in my lap. I was determined to look smart, too, so I got the smartest girl in school to compose "my" letters to him.

Jerry is coming home next month. The minute I open my mouth he'll know I didn't write those letters. Shall I confess right off or try to fake it? — GHOSTED

Dear Ghosted: Confess right off and pray that Jerry has a sense of humor. If he doesn't laugh, introduce him to the girl who wrote the letters.
